E. D. SASSOON CO. IS ABSORBED BY ARNHOLD BROS., IS CURRENT REPORT

Merger Consummated In London, Shanghai Hears

NO CONFIRMATION

H. E. Arnhold Expected In City On November 3

Absorption of the extensive interests of the firm of Messrs. E. D. Sassoon and Company by the firm of Messrs. Arnhold Brothers and Company—one of the biggest mergers in the commercial history of the Far East—has been brought about, according to reports that have been received here, as the outcome of negotiations conducted in London.

We understand that the proposal to amalgamate was made in London, with Captain Ellis Sassoon and Mr. H. E. Arnhold conducting the negotiations. The latter is expected to arrive in Shanghai on the Empress of Canada on November 3 and an announcement of the future policy of the big combine is expected shortly after his return.

The purchasing of the E. D. Sassoon and Company interests will make Arnhold Brothers and Company one of the largest business institutions in the Far East, with extensive operations in China and India.

E. D. Sassoon and Company own and operate cotton mills in Bombay and do a large general merchandise business, both in export and import.

The Sassoon interests were converted into a limited liability company less than three years ago and is capitalised at one hundred million rupees.

The firm started by trading with Canton from Bombay, following the British flag to Hongkong and gradually extending their connections to the various treaty ports of China. E. D. Sassoon and Company followed the establishment of David Sassoon and Company.

Arnhold Brothers and Company are general merchants, engineers and contractors and operate in various cities of China. The firm was established in 1866 as Arnhold, Karberg and Company. Jacob Arnhold, the founder, died 19 years ago. In Shanghai the company is the sole distributor of Metropolitan-Vickers, and is general manager of the New Engineering and Shipbuilding Works, Oriental Cotton Spinning and Weaving Company, and the Soy Lun Filature. The company also represents several insurance companies and deals extensively in general merchandise, maintaining offices in all treaty ports of China, London and New York.

Both Messrs. E. D. Sassoon and Co., Ltd., and Messrs. Arnhold Bros., Ltd., have been established in the East for many years.

The proposal to amalgamate emanated from E. D. Sassoon and Company, in London, where Captain Ellis Sassoon, on behalf of the Directors of his firm, approached Mr. H. A. Arnhold in London with a proposition to merge the two institutions. Just what the scheme is has not been fully disclosed, and will be known when Mr. Arnhold arrives in Shanghai by the Empress of Canada.

The absorption of E. D. Sassoon and Co., Ltd., by Arnhold Bros., will serve to make the latter one of the biggest undertakings in the Orient, for besides a large piecegoods trade that Sassoon's do, they own some large cotton mills in Bombay, whose products are marketed throughout India and China.

Arnhold Bros. are general managers of the Oriental Cotton Spinning and Weaving Co., Ltd., and the fusion will give them additional control over some very important cotton mills in India.

Besides being merchants, Messrs. Arnhold Bros. are also engineers and contractors, and with their qualified engineers they are in a position to deal with any undertaking that comes before them. They are well placed for this kind of business as they have the strong financial backing so necessary.

The directors of Messrs. Arnhold Bros. and Co., Ltd., are Messrs. H. E. Arnhold and C. H. Arnhold (governing directors), J. R. Patterson, J. S. S. Cooper, W. Herensperger, B. M. Webb, M. Wolfers and R. E. Wilson.

The directors of Messrs. E. D. Sassoon and Co., Ltd., are Captain Ellis Sassoon, Captain R. E. Sassoon, M. C., Captain

Why Mongol Women Marry

—By Arcady

MONGOLIANS recognise the inherent weakness of the female of the species—and so only married women are allowed to dress their raven locks in the fashion depicted above. The Mongolian flapper and batchelor maid do their hair plainly.

-:- Yak-Tail Trails -:-

A Romantic Trek From The Land of The Midnight Sun Through The Heart Of Asia, The Fantastic Land of Mongolia, And Mysterious Thibet To Shanghai.

XIV—EVE'S DESERT DAUGHTERS

By Larry Lehrlas

The Mongolians have a belief—which is one of the few they live up to—that if, on their journey through this mortal coil, they become too closely associated with water they will become fishes in the next world. And who wants to be a poor fish?

Desiring rather to be camels with stomachs after the order of box-within-box puzzles, or reincarnated in the shape of the little bird called the elephant the Mongolians live up to their tenets in every way. They never take a bath, whether they need one or not—and they always need one. In fact all through their travels in Mongolia Serge and his companions in the calvacade on the yak-tail trails saw only one tribe which looked almost clean. It was rumored that they had been flooded out the year before when the river they lived beside flooded its banks.

Mongolia is permeated with such overpowering uncleanliness. It is a distinction that marks them more than any other single trait of character, peculiarity of dress, or strange cast of features. The Chinese, who say that foreigners have an odor to which they object, would consider the 'foreign odor' the most blissful of perfumes in comparison. One legend from the Mongolian plains is translated as follows:

"Once upon a time there was a goat which one Russian traveler asserted had more odor than the Mongol chief at their yurt. His companions disagreed with him and so they decided to make a test. The goat was brought toward the chief down-wind, but the chief didn't even wrinkle his nose. Then the chief was led toward the goat, down-wind—and the goat fainted!"

A CROWNING GLORY!

The Mongolian women attempt to make up for their plain features by setting the pace for their Asiatic sisters in style, evidently under the impression that a rose is still a rose by any other name. The Mongol women, like thousands of her ponyouer the steppes to recivilised sisters, has a penchant for gaudy colors and gallops her ligious festivals or family feasts decked out in everything but the kitchen stove equalled only by a perambulating rainbow.

Mongolian women dress almost the same as the men, except that they are decorated with more ornaments, and their coat sleeves have that inimitable leg'-o-mutton effect affected by their grand-mother's cousins across the seas. Their crowning glory, like that of Eve herself, is their hair. A wise old King Solomon probably ruled the tribes of Mongolia many years ago, and being opposed to birth control for militaristic reasons—as Mrs. Margaret Sangor says the Japanese are—laid down the rule that only married women could bedeck themselves with the elaborate superstructure of glory piled on glory that the married women of Mongolia now wear.

As a result it is to be expected that the Mongolian flapper, anxious to preen her feathers with the matrons of the tribe eagerly accepted proposals from the dashing Mongolian swains, in order to emerge from the drab chrysalis state if for no better reason.

The Mongolian matron does her hair in the fashion as shown in the accompanying sketch by Arcady. Their hair is arranged on a wooden or bone frame which curves out from either side of her head like a sheep's horns. The Mongolian women, it is alleged, have worn the gigantic

Sowerby To Talk At Union Church Hall This Evening

Naturalist Will Lecture On Value Of Biological Research

The lecture to be given this evening at the Union Church Literary and Social Guild at 8:45 promises to be one of especial interest. Mr. Arthur de Carle Sowerby, the well known naturalist and author, will speak on the "Advantages of Biological Research," with especial reference to the field for such research in China.

Had it not been for the disturbed conditions in Fukien Province it might have been impossible for Mr. Sowerby to be in Shanghai, as he had planned an extensive trip in the South for the Autumn. The lecture will be in the church lecture hall and is open to the public. Those who have not yet secured membership tickets for the season will be able to do so at the door, but after tonight membership tickets will be issued only on application to the secretaries.

SITUATION IMPROVED

Peking, Oct. 21.—General Chang Wen-sung has agreed to turn over the Tuchun's seals to General Ma Lien-cha and the Anhuei situation has been settled as a result. The Anhuei residents here have asked the Government to prohibit moving of new troops into their province and the Government has referred the matter to General Wu Pei-fu with instructions to take no action in Anhuei now that the matter is settled.

American Trade Bodies Form China Association; Discuss Vital Issues Here

Representatives Of Chambers Of Commerce Hold Conference; Hail Hoover Financial Investigation Committee; Britons Invited To Discussions

Representatives of American Chambers of Commerce located at Shanghai, Tientsin, Peking and Hankow held a meeting in the rooms of the American Chamber at Shanghai on Monday, October 23 and formed an association representing all American commercial interests in China to be known as the Associated American Chambers of Commerce in China. The delegates to the meeting were Mr. F. J. Twogood, representing Hankow; Mr. F. S. Williams and T. E. Simmang, representing Tientsin; Mr. C. E. Seymour representing Peking, and Messrs. J. Harold Dollar, W. A. Burns, V. G. Lyman, J. S. Dolan, A. B. Hykes, H. B. Lane and C. B. Arthur, representing Shanghai. The Board of Directors of the American Chamber of Shanghai and Lansing W. Hoyt, U. S. Trade Commissioner, met with the delegates by invitation.

Membership in the Associatio[n] is limited to American Chambe[rs] having an active membership of five corporations, while associate membership is granted to American Chambers having less than five corporate members. American Chambers of Commerce located in China, including Manchuri[a], Thibet, Mongolia and any territor[y] leased by China to a foreign Government, the Crown Colony of Hongkong, province of Macao and Siberia are eligible to membership. Similar bodies having for their aim the promotion of American trade located anywhere in the Far East are eligible for associate membership in the China association.

PURPOSE STATED

The purpose of the Associated A[merican] Chambers as set forth in [the] constitution is to consider qu[estions] concerning American fi[nancial], commercial, manufacturin[g] and shipping interests in [China] to co-operate through [the] Associated American Chamb[ers] of Commerce and affiliated [with] the American Governm[ent] and by united action [secure] as an individual [may] have difficulty in [obtaining] separately; and when [necessary] to appoint an agent or [agents] to office in Washington [to] confer with various members [of Congress] on available information on [matters] affecting American in[terests] and to facilitate communi[cation] between the Associated [Chambers] and the American go[vernment] and public bodies in t[he] United States.

DISCUSS VITAL MATTERS

After the adoption of the constitution the meeting considered a number of matters of vital importance to American financial, commercial and general interests in China. Among the subjects discussed which later were the subject of resolutions, are: American investments in China; China and world financial readjustment; China's defaults upon American loans and other Governmental obligations; the Special Tariff Conference; co-operation with an American protective Committee that has been organised in Peking; the China Trade Act; American Consular Diplomatic and Commercial Attache services in China; harbor improvements and regulations for Shanghai, Tientsin, Canton, Tsingtau and other ports; American Consular property in China; American personnel in Chinese Government services; postage rates between China and the United States; disorder in China; depreciated copper currency; exchange of news between America and China; American Yangtsze River Patrol; application of Rule One of the Chinese Customs duties, and the imposition of illegal and burdensome surtaxes and other restrictions on trade by the Chinese Government and provincial officials.

HAIL HOOVER COMMITTEE

Although the resolutions adopted have not yet been drafted in form for publication and circulation to the member Chambers, the subject of American investments in China and other financial matters received considerable attention. Gratitude was expressed at the appointment of a financial investigation committee by Secretary Hoover a few days ago and the Associated Chambres voted to give this committee full co-operation in making investigations and in carrying out its work to the end that American investments in China may be protected and placed on an even footing with those of other nationals. On the subject of China and world financial readjustment it was the sense of the meeting that, in case the U. S. called a general financial and economic conference for the purpose of readjusting European and world finance, China be included in such a conference and that the status of China be considered as a part of any scheme for world financial rehabilitation.

CONSIDER TARIFF CONFAB

Considerable attention was paid to the Special Tariff Conference which is expected to meet in Peking next Spring and a resolution passed urged upon President Harding the importance of appointing "the strongest possible commission from the standpoint of personnel and technical skill-men with a thorough knowledge of China's treaties and commitments, to the end that American interests in China may be protected, the open door fully maintained, and American investment and obligations in China be placed on an absolutely

PRESIDENT BOAT ARRIVING TODAY WITH U. S. MA[IL]

Liner Pierce Of Pacific [Mail] Due To Dock At About 2 This Afternoon

Bringing American mails, passengers and cargo for Shanghai the steamer President Pierce of the Pacific Mail is to arrive about 2 o'clock this afternoon from San Francisco and will dock at the China Merchants Central wharf. The vessel is to be dispatched for Manila and Hongkong at daybreak tomorrow.

Following the Pierce, the next mail from America is due on the President Madison of the Admiral Line next Tuesday. The vessel sailed from Seattle on October 14 and is due at Yokohama on Thursday.

Mail for the United States and Honolulu will be dispatched on the President Lincoln next Saturday and is scheduled to arrive in San Francisco on November 16. The steamer leaves Hongkong today and is due here on Friday.

The Nanking of the China Mail left Hongkong Monday afternoon and is due at Woosung early tomorrow morning. Arrangements are being made to dispatch the vessel on Thursday evening and it is expected to arrive in San Francisco via Yokohama and Honolulu on November 17, one day ahead of schedule. The tender with outbound passengers will leave the Customs jetty at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon.

Fathers And Sons Dinner Next Monday

Arrangements have been completed for the second annual "father and son" dinner, which is to be held at the Navy Y.M.C.A. next Monday night. A good program has been prepared and a good time is assured all who attend.

This is a "get together" affair that was inaugurated last year and proved such a success that it was decided to make it an annual event. All fathers are cordially invited to ask their sons to participate. The program of entertainment that has been arranged will be of a nature to provide an evening's excellent fun for the guests, old and young, and it is the hope of the committee that all fathers will take this opportunity to "get acquainted" with their sons, or, if already acquainted, to get better acquainted.

Farewell Tiffin Is Given By Chinese To Mr. H. H. Fox

Mr. H. H. Fox, British Commercial Counsellor, who has been identified with the British diplomatic service in China for the past thirty-two years, and who is leaving in the coming week for Peking to assume a post with the British Embassy, was guest of honor yesterday at a farewell tiffin given in his honor by a number of leading Chinese and attended by a number of prominent British residents.

Mr. Chu Pao-san presided at the tiffin and other Chinese present were Messrs. Fu Siao-en, K. P. Chen, C. C. Nieh, Pan Chingpoo, Chun Shut-kai, Lo Kingkee, Pan Tse-chuen, C. Lee and Chang Nieh-yun. British present were Judge Peter Grain and Messrs. G. H. Stitt, John Johnstone, A. W. Burkill, H. H. Girardot, E. F. Mackay, H. W. Lester, G. N. Wilson, W. P. Lambe, C. F. Carstin and O. M. Green.

At the conclusion of the tiffin as a token of esteem to the departing official an illuminated Chinese address on silk, a translation of which was read, was presented to him. This address is as follows:

"Mr. Fox, H. B. M. Commercial Counsellor, has come to our country, China, for thirty-two years and from a Consul was promoted Consul-General in which capacity he served for ten years. He was later appointed Commercial Counsellor for five years.

"Mr. Fox is conversant with our language and literature and is thoroughly familiar with Anglo-Chinese commercial conditions and relations. He is a man of high endowments, large calibre and possesses an amiable disposition. He promoted the formation of the Union Club to cement friendly relations and impart mutual knowledge.

"We have constantly met with him to our immeasurable delight. As he is now leaving for Peking for a new sphere and has fixed upon his departure, we feel sincere regret and have nothing to offer him for a gift. We have, however, indited a few words which we present to him for a memorial and we pray for his health and blessing in his onward career.

"Dated the 10th month of the 11th Year of the Chinese Republic."

SHRINE MINSTREL SHOW OPENS AT OLYMPIC TONIGHT

Stage All Set For Foud-Day Jubilee Of Local Talent

Tonight at the Olympic the scene will shift from Shanghai to down abaft the Mason-Dixon line is the Shriners' Alabama Minstrels introduce themselves for a four-days' pause in our midst.

Everything is set, the promoters stated last night, for the biggest and brightest darky jubilee entertainment as yet put on the local boards. The Minstrels, after a successful, night-long dress rehearsal Monday, took a rest last night and will tackle 'circle' and 'olio' tonight with all the zest of a 'cawn pone' and 'possum' fed aggregation from the land of feuds and cotton.

The chorus was in fine form for the rehearsal and should be in finer this evening and the end men snapped their patter and jokes in scintillant style.

The olio contains a number of novelties calculated to reach out and put a convulsive clutch on the interest of any audience. The variety numbers are in the hands of some of the most talented of local amateurs and their success is warranted by all who saw the dress rehearsal.

The Minstrels will be on at the Olympic tonight, tomorrow and Friday nights, Saturday afternoon and Saturday night. The booking is at Moutrie's.

Japan's Workers Flay Government For Its Failure

(Reuter's Service)

Geneva, Oct. 23.—At the meeting of the International Labor Conference today the Japanese workers' delegate accused the Japanese Government of failing to carry out the decisions of the Washington Conference.

Mr. Joshi, the Indian workers' delegate, pointed out that the Labor Conventions have not been applied in many Crown Colonies and Indian States and urged the governing body of the Labor Office to take up the matter.

FUKIEN SITUATION

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 24.—Rear-Admiral Chen Chi has returned from Shanghai and reports that Admiral Chou Chow-jual is ready to take the First Squadron to Mamoi immediately if the necessary funds are provided.

Fukien Members of Parliament at a meeting at the Navy Club yesterday evening to discuss the Fukien situation showed preference for Admiral Sah Chenping as ruler of that province as opposed to General Li Kuanghsung.

It was stated today that the Fukien Members intend to protest against the entry of General Chang Teh-shang's Kiangsi troops as reinforcements on the ground that these Yichun troops do more harm than good.

RAIL GRANT OPPOSED

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Oct. 24.—With regard to the concession to construct a light railway between Tienpaoshan and the Tumen River, which General Chang Tso-lin is reported to have given to Japanese, it is stated unofficially that the Ministry of Communications has complied with the request of the Chientao delegation to oppose the scheme and that it has requested the Waichiaopu to notify the Japanese Legation accordingly.

BOLSHEVISTS DEMAND FULL SURRENDER AT VLADIVOSTOK

Withdrawal Of All Foreign Troops First Term

JAPANESE TO GO

Tokio Orders Withdrawal To Begin Today

(Dalta News Agency)

Peking, October 24.—The last communique of Narrevarmy (People's Revolutionary Army) of the Far Eastern Republic runs: "In the direction of Vladivostock the Narrevarmy, after finally crushing Dieterichs' army, occupied the station Okeanskaya 21 versts from Vladivostock and, following the retreating Japanese, moved further to Vtoraya Rechka.

"In the direction of Possiet and Hunchun the Narrevarmy, operating in the maritime province, occupied the village Nejino and continued pursuing the enemy who is retreating towards Barabash. Our army occupied the entire border zone up to Grodekovo, on the Ussuri railway, 200 versts from Vladivostok."

Peking, October 24.—Negotiations are proceeding between the consular corps and the command of Narrevarmy regarding the latter's occupation of Vladivostock.

On arrival of the Narrevarmy at Vtoraya Rechka the latter's command was informed of the stationing between Vtoraya and Pervaya Rechka, 3 miles from Vladivostock of a Japanese gordon disarming everyone there.

Narrevarmy's Command presented to the Japanese a demand to clear our territory, whereupon, on the 19th inst. two Japanese officers were despatched by the Consular Corps from Vladivostock to the Headquarters of Narrevarmy, transmitting the Consular Corps' invitation to enter into negotations regarding peaceful occupation of Vadivostock by Narrevarmy. The delegates stated that the Japanese would leave Vladivostock on the 25th of October.

Desirous to avoid bloodshed, firing and destruction of Vladivostock we consented to accept the Corps' proposal to negotiate.

On October 20th the Japanese, American and British Consuls left Vladivostock for Station Ugolnaya, where Uberovitch, the Chief Commander of Narrevarmy, presented seven demands.

First, the entire withdrawal of foreign armed detachments from Russian territory.

Second, recalling of all foreign warships from Vladivostock:

Third, handing over to the authorities of the Far East Republic all the Russian war supplies, all Russian steamers and other state property.

Fourth, to prevent the destruction of Vladivostok:

Fifth, to free and give over to F. E. R. authorities all political prisoners and to assure protection of all adherents of the F. E. R. against whiteguards and Japanese.

Sixth, to restore to the authorities of F. E. R. all the Russian military and merchant marine carried off abroad:

Seventh, to draft a plan of Narrevarmy's entry into Vladivostok.

Vladivostok Last Czarist Stronghold

(China Press Service)

Vladivostok (via Russian Island Wireless), Oct. 24.—The last scene of the Russian revolution has been written in blood here. Those who, since the Bolsheviks conquered the rest of Russia, have defended the last outpost of Russian Imperialism have departed.

Five hundred have been killed and the people of Vladivostok are awaiting the Reds with mixed joy and fear.

The latest definite news to arrive from Siberia came on the s.s. Shun Yue, operated by Heimann and Company, 19A Canton Road, which arrived from Vladivostok yesterday morning. The vessel left Vladivostok on October 16—which was before the present trouble occured—but at that time the city was apprehensive of trouble, according to Captain A. A. Warild.

Captain Warild said that the Japanese commander had ordered all civilians on board Japanese transports in the harbor, and that the foreign consuls had agreed to have Marines land if there was any possibility of the Reds taking the city. A report Monday night from Vladivostok said American and British Marines had been landed, which bears out reports that the Reds are at least at the gates of the city.

"Many refugees are fleeing from the city," Captain Warild said yesterday. "We came into port with 46 foreign refugees, and out of Vladivostok we had 700 Chinese coolies, most of whom unloaded at Chefoo. The present trouble caused one of the funniest incidents I've experienced.

"The Russians are very strict just now on passports. Before we left nine passport officers boarded the ship and made a minute and careful examination of every passport, including the Chinese. Then they told me to go ahead, everything was alright. I asked them where their sampan was.

"'Oh,' they said, 'we're going with you.' Then they dumped all the passports overboard and came along with me. Some of them got off in Chefoo, and some came into Shanghai. They were Whites who didn't care to stay and face the Reds."

Among the passengers arriving on the Shin Yue were 11 Russian men, 11 Russian women and 7 children. The Chief of Police at Vladivostok, a White, was one of the refugees, as was M. Isankovitch, a director and the manager of the Russo-Asiatic Bank.

General Dieterichs ordered all civilians to leave Vladivostok on October 19 and is said to have commandeered ships for the purpose. Many refugees have gone to Korea, according to Captain Warild, but two ships of the Russian Volunteer Fleet, which were scheduled to sail with refugees, were unable to sail because some one had removed parts of the engine machinery.

Shanghailanders acquainted with Vladivostok and its environs are inclined to believe that the White forces, which are said to number about 10,000 have taken up a position near Possiet, where if they are defeated by the Reds they can simply step over the border into Korea or China and save their skins.

Arnhold Bros. To Arsorb Sassoon Co.

Ronald Sassoon and Mr. J. R. Raymond.

It is likely that under the new merger some of these directors will obtain seats on the board of directors of Messrs. Arnhold Bros. and Co., Ltd. The firm of E. D. Sassoon and Co. is capitalised at a hundred million rupees.

With the ever-growing business in China it because necessary for Arnhold Bros. to replace their principal buying agents in Europe and America by with offices of their own in London and New York, all of which have developed so fast so that large staffs are employed at each of them. By perseverance, acumen and industry, the firm's business has increased and its sphere extended. Besides their offices in New York and London, the firm still employs a number of buying agents in different parts of the world and has still a larger number of agents for the sale of China products.

For upwards of a quarter of a century Messrs. Arnhold Brothers have been prominently associated with the commercial development of Hankow. They carry on an extensive import and export business there in every kind of produce and they deal largely in machinery. Among their largest lines of Chinese products may be mentioned sesamum seeds and hides.

Messrs. E. D. Sassoon and Co., Ltd. is one of the mostly widely known firms of any in the Far East. When Warren Hastings was laying the foundations of the British Empire in India a fruitful source of revenue was provided by the import and export trade with Canton, which the Sassoons had established from their hearquarters in Bombay. As soon as the British took Hongkong representatives of the family opened a branch there and they have gradually extended their business to the Treaty ports of China, although in recent years the China business has been done from the offices in Hongkong and Shanghai. The founder of the firm of E. D. Sassoon and Co. was one of the first to start trading in Shanghai when the port was thrown open to the foreign merchant. In Shanghai as in Hongkong the firm deals principally in cotton yarn and piece goods. The firm of E. D. Sassoon and Co. is an offshoot of the still older house of David Sassoon and Co., Ltd.

A Mongol Flapper

—By Arcady

MOGOLIANS reverse the "civilised" nature of things. Until she's married the flapper must be the drab moth without an ornamental superstructure to crown her glory. She must become "Mrs." before she blossoms out as a butterfly.

Yak-Tail Trails

biscuit-roll for so many centuries they have no use for their ears, and when the bobbed-hair craze strikes inner Asia sometime in the next century it is feared they (the ears) will be found to have become atrophied appendages.

And There's Still More!

AND THERE'S STILL MORE!

On either side of the elaborate superstructure silver bands block out the hair, giving the effect of a gigantic hair-net of shining metal over an ancient female pompadour. Serge did not make a close inspection as—as we have beforeherein mentioned—the style is worn only by the married women, but we venture the prediction that they also wear monstrous 'rats' of camel's wool concealed within the mattress. From this grotesque head-dress two raven plaits often hang down around the women's shoulders tipped with silver or pearl tassels, or if they are mere Mongolian proletarians, common bamboo tubes.

The unmarried Mongolian women have no particular style following the dictates of their own ideas just so long as they do not poach on the Vanity Fair grounds of their married sisters. Generally they wear pig-tails bound with a piece of colored silk and tucked up under their hats. Both married and unmarried wear a filigree 'dunce' cap topped by a yellow or black peak from which is perched a crystal ball.

THREE GUESSES—

At first sight as the Mongolians come galloping across the plains on their speedy little ponies it is impossible to tell whether a male or female of the species approaches. It is only when they comes close enough to distinguish the headgear that any degree of guessing success is attained, for the men and women dress almost identical. Aside from the leg-o'-mutton sleeves, the brighter colors, and the fact that the women seldom, if ever, wear belts, they cannot be told apart. Despite the dictates of the Parish fashion setters as to whether serge or silk is the cloth of the moment the Mongolians wear their same old sheepskin pelts or crudely woven woolen baggy trousers and waists, and high leather riding boots spring, summer, fall and winter. By 'the same old sheepskin pelts' we render the description literally, for the Mongols never change either the style or material of their glad rags until the ones they are wearing drop off or become indistinct in the succeeding layers of earthy earth that gathers about them with such stick-to-it-iveness. Further comparisons between the two sexes would be, as Shakespeare has so aptly said, only odofous.

Under the peculiar classification of woman suffrage that rules throughout Mongolia the woman is the boss as long as the yurt is pitched, but when the family and their yurt, horses, sheep and cooties take the trail the man becomes the supreme arbiter of their destiny. 'At home' the Mongolian woman cooks the antelope, mutton, mutton and mutton—for antelope is Sunday chow and mutton is three times a day—prepares the koumiss, boils the tea, milks the mares, gives the interior of the dirty yurt a lick and a promise, mends the saddles, and does any of the other dirty work that is to be done. Her sphere, truly, is in the home, although she hasn't a great deal of bother with the children as most Mongolian families average three or four and they are out riding their 'rocking horses' from the time they can climb on the ponies' backs.

A BABY'S BOTTLE

Even the youngsters provide little trouble. Serge saw two or three contentedly lying on their backs in a pile of sheepskins sucking away at a Mongolian baby-bottle—a yak-horn, pierced at the tip and usable through the attached sheep-teat in lieu of a rubber nipple.

Mongolian women, according to Serge, would never win a beauty prize. They are of the hefty variety, crude featured, tanned by the sun and cut by the stinging sands—and without the polite implements of the toilette so necessary to our modern civilised maids—and because of the hard life they live on the steppes and desert and their antipathy to baths, are far from rivalling Venus in all her loveliness. During his entire trip across Mongolia Serge saw only one that would pass in a crowd. Inquiry concerning her led to the information that she was 'eligible' and Serge asked the usual method of procedure to be followed.

"If you can catch her she's yours," his Mongol informant asserted in pidgin-Russian.

Serge hopped on his pony and gave chase to the passing maiden fair. He never caught her—and he learned about Mongolian women from her!

In the next installment of this interesting travelogue we go from the 'sublime' to the ridiculous and have an insight into the life of the male of the species on the Mongolian steppes. It appears tomorrow in THE CHINA PRESS Another sketch by Arcady also appears.

THREE YEAR TERM IS GIVEN CHINESE FOR FIRING SHOP

Sentence of three years' imprisonment was passed by the Mixed Court yesterday on a Chinese shopkeeper convicted of arson.

The man, who was tried before Assessor King and Magistrate Li, was charged with firing his furniture shop, at 915 Woosung Road, on September 24. The place was insured for Tls. 3,000 through Andersen, Meyer and Co., a broker of which company testified that the accused also had a Tls. 3,000 policy in a Chinese insurance company.

Telephone Girl Will Tell It All

GOLDIE Palmer, telephone operator in a big Los Angeles hotel, is to publish a book of her experiences. She says she will not tell too much, but here are some of the things she does say: That a woman usually has the last word; that the most appreciative telphone patrons are the wealthy and those used to luxury and the movie folks; that the most trouble-some are lounge lizards and their friends, and that the worst of all are people who believe a telephone system never gets out of order.

FURTHER HONORS CONFERRED UPON JUDGE LOBINGIER

Soochow University To Give Decree—Government Awards Decoration

Further felicitations for Judge Charles Sumner Lobingier, of the United States Court for China, the twentieth anniversary of whose accession to the Bench was so happily celebrated at the community dinner given Monday night, have been received from Soochow University. The University, in recognition of Judge Lobingier's great interest in and service to the institution, announces the intention of conferring the degree of Doctor of Jurisprudence upon him.

It was also announced yesterday by the Bureau of Foreign Affairs here that a Presidential mandate dated October 23 confers upon Judge Lobingier the 3rd Class Chiao Ho decoration.

The letter announcing the decision of Soochow University to confer the degree follows:

October 19, 1922.

Hon. Charles S. Lobingier,
Judge of the United States Court for China,
Shanghai.

Dear Judge Lobingier:

A letter has been received from Mr. Blume, Dean of the Law Department of Soochow University, in which he states substantially as follows:

On the 23rd of this month various organisations of Shanghai are to give a dinner in honor of Judge Lobingier, the occasion being the twentieth anniversary of his elevation to the Bench. As this is to be in the nature of a testimonial banquet it is respectfully suggested that the Law School should participate in view of the great service rendered the school by Judge Lobingier at the time of and since its establishment. To make our participation effective, it is further suggested that Soochow University through its Law Department announce on this occasion a decision of the Board of Trustees to confer on Judge Lobingier, at the next annual commencement of the Law School, an honorary degree.

In an article written during the first year of the law school's existence, the then dean stated: "Judge Charles S. Lobingier, of the United States Court, has been most interested and helpful in inaugurating the enterprise, and in giving lectures in a course in civil law—a rare opportunity for all law students. Since then the Judge has rendered a great service in lending his name to the institution, giving helpful suggestions, and in telling every new lawyer coming to Shanghai that the members of the bar owe a duty to the school.

Judge Lobingier has written a large number of treatises on law and greatly enriched the field of legal literature. He holds degrees of Ph. D., D. C. L., LL. M., LL. D. etc., and although it is hard to find one suitable to offer him, his friends believe that he will appreciate receiving an honorary degree from Soochow University. I am heartily in favor of it, and feel that it will be an honor to the school to have his name listed with our alumni. . . .

Upon receipt of the foregoing from the Dean of the Law School, the Board of Trustees of Soochow University heartily endorsed the suggestion and unanimously voted to confer upon you at the next annual commencement of the Law School the degree of Doctor of Jurisprudence.

May I also extend to you our sincerest appreciation for what you have done for the Law Department of Soochow University, and to congratulate you upon this happy occasion.

Sincerely yours,
A. P. Parker
President, Board of Trustees
Soochow University

VOICE AMPLIFIER MAY BE USED AT VOTERS MEETING

Mr. E. E. Strother Brings Remarkable Instrument For Use In China

Ratepayers next year may not have to strain their ears to hear the addresses delivered, if an offer made by Mr. Edgar E. Strother, General Secretary of the Christian Endeavor Society, is followed up by the Council. Mr. Strother brings to China the "Magnavox," an instrument for magnifying the powers of the human voice. He will try it out at the Police Sports on Saturday and he has already offered it to the Council for use at the annual general meeting. This remarkable invention has been used by Mr. Strother with signal success in an open air pulpit in New York, where he preached to the multitudes passing along Fifth Avenue, his voice being distinctly heard above the traffic clamor by persons three blocks away.

"The Magnavox is not new, except in China" said Mr. Strother. "It has been used to amplify concerts, jazz music for dancing and has been heard distinctly a distance of five miles. My object is to induce the mission boards to use it to save their preachers voices and spread the Gospel in China to thousands where hundreds only now can hear the voice of the preacher. With this instrument, a crowd of 10,000 can hear the speaker's voice as readily as a few hundred now, and the preacher, instead of shouting himself red in the face and reducing his vocal cords to a state of atrophy, will use his ordinary speaking voice to crowd after crowd, never faltering in his good work by reason of failure of his vocal organs to respond.

"It have taken the matter of a concert test up with the Council and hope to be able to demonstrate how an ordinary gramaphone can be heard distinctly over as wide an area as a brass band. In an Oakland, California, park concert the music was heard distinctly five miles away, but that was with a higher power instrument that I have here with me.

"The suggestion of the use of the Magnavox for the Ratepayers' meeting came from the Secretary of the Council and I have gladly agreed to have my instrument, the only one in China, there for the meeting. This method of vocal amplication has been used by Presidents Wilson and Harding for their various campaign speeches and enabled millions, perhaps, who otherwise would have had to be content with a mere sight of these men to hear every word they said.

"The use of the Magnavox for the amplification of music is well known as it will fill a huge dance hall with the cadence and crash of jazz for the dancers. This has been one of its greatest uses to now, but speaking 'ex cathedra,' it has been used for frivolity long enough and I now propose to use it for the propagation of the Gospel of God."

The instrument possessed by Mr. Strother is a gift from friends in New York and has only the ordinary mouthpiece, a dual one in fact, so that if a concert can be arranged, not only gramaphone music but vocal solos and duets can be sent forth into the atmosphere amplified a hundred fold or more. He has planned these tests not to justify the instrument but to call it strongly to the attention of the Mission Boards that they may adopt it and magnify their preachers' vocal radius to far greater effectiveness than can be measured by its cost in dollars.

Steel Production In Canada Drops Off

Montreal, Sept. 20 (by mail).—Steel production in the Dominion declined to 59,201 tons in August, as compared with an output of 62,767 tons during the previous month. The output in August is also less than in the corresponding month last year by 12,822 tons.

The production for the first eight months of the present year was 399,048 tons, a decrease from the same period of 1921 of 122,093 tons, or 29 percent. The quantity produced in the eight-month period last year was 421,141 tons. The average production in August, 1919 to 1922, was 76,964 tons.

European Tales

Paris, Sept. 9.—With most Parisians of importance now beginning to return from their vacations or from taking their "cures," the atmosphere in the capital is now full of seaside and mountain gossip of sorts. From among this flood of anecdotage le. us pick out just a few specimens;

Vichy: Party of motorists going along the road. They pass an old gentleman with bushy eyebrows, a heavy white mustache, and the walk of a lady of 20, plodding along for exercise. The members of the party stare and stare. Finally Father says, right out loud:

"What do you know about that? There's an old bird who's gotten himself up like Clemenceau!"

The remark is not lost on the elderly pedestrian. With a grin he shouts back at the occupan of the car: "Yes, and damn well imitated, eh?"

That night the "Tiger" himself, former premier, 80 years young, tells the story on himself to all and sundry at the Casino.

Deanville: King of Spain exiting from his friend's chateau. Bunch of little girls along the road recognise him; one of them shouts: "Hurrah for the king!" Alfonso, pleased, offers the little girl a bank note. Whereupon another youngster of the party shouts out. "Why, you're not the king after all!"

"How's that?" asked the still smiling monarch.

"Because," replies the young philosopher, "If you really were the king you wouldn't be pleased enough to be called that to want to give Loulou those 60 francs. And besides, where's your crown?"

That noon, at the Potiniere the king tells the story with gusto to a crowd of his titled friends.

En route to Aix-les-Baine: American tourist seated at table with two French ladies and their escort, in the dining car. When the roast comes on the American, ignorant of the customs of the country, takes out a pipe and starts to smoke without asking permission of the others.

One of the French ladies, knowing the American's language, puts this to him: "I beg your pardon, sir, but will it disturb you if I eat while you smoke?"

Hasty apologies; and a put-out pipe.

Rambouillet, the French "Summer White House:" President Millerand talking with some friends. "Yes," he pursues, sadly, "I'm very much worried about my son Jean's future career!"

"Why so" puts in an astounded visitor.

"Because," replied the stern parent, "he doesn't like to play billiards! No, he'll never be president!"

And the genial M. Millerand, who is a billiard fan of the first water, has a good laugh at the expense of his eldest.

PRESIDENT WIRES GREETINGS FOR PACIFIC CONFAB

Offers Unlimited Resources For Trade With Friendly Powers

President Li Yuan-hung will convey his greetings at the initial session of the Pan-Pacific Commercial Conference, which opens in Honolulu today, through the senior representative of the Chinese delegation, Mr. H. Y. Moh. China is represented at the conference by four other members, Messrs. S. U. Zau, Paul Y. Pih, Chao Kwei-fung and the Chinese Consul-General at Honolulu, Mr. Tam.

The full text of President Li's message is as follows:

"Ever since the Great War in Europe, the spirit of democracy has swept around the world. Only in commerce and industry does the freedom of competition and rivalry remain. The United States of America, the greatest of all Republics, has seen fit to convene the Pan-Pacific Commercial Congress at this time, and her invitations have found a most hearty response from all countries on the Pacific.

"Representatives have come from far and near for the purpose of exchanging their knowledge and experiences and of cementing a permanent friendship among the nations. Our Republic is noted for its almost unlimited natural resources of all descriptions and she is eager to trade in these with different countries without dividing the East from the West. We firmly believe that trade on this basis will prove to be of the greatest benefit to all concerned, and we pledge our very best to its promotion and achievement.

"From the mountain-top of the Hawaiian Islands you can watch and enjoy on the horizon of the sea the beautiful sunrise which we fervently pray will betoken the future of the world commerce. As we turn our face toward the West during the days of the Congress, our hearts go out to you in best wishes for the best and greatest of all success."

American Trade Bodies In Merger

equal footing with those of other nationals."

The Association took a strong stand on the subject of China's defaults upon American loans and government debts for equipment purchased and passed a resolution deprecating the effect of these defaults upon American trade and China's credit in the United States. The American Government was urged to take the necessary steps to see that American interests in this regard be not discriminated against.

MODE AMERICAN NEWS

Several of the matters discussed were of interest outside of the commercial community, especially one dealing with the need for fuller and better American news reports in China. The American government was urged to take action extending to China the present low wireless rates for news messages now in existence between America and the Philippine Islands. Another action recommends the immediate negotiation of a reciprocal postal treaty between China and the United States whereby domestic postage rates may be made to apply similar to a treaty now in existence between China and Japan and between America and Great Britain.

BRITISH DELEGATES TAKE PART

The final session of the conference was held yesterday afternoon when delegates from the British Chamber of Commerce were invited to participate in discussions of certain subjects of interest to the commercial bodies of both countries. The visiting delegates were entertained at tiffin at the Union Club by the American Chamber of Commerce of Shanghai on Monday and were guests at the anniversary dinner tendered to Judge Lobingier on Monday evening.

It is the purpose of the Association American Chambers to hold annual and special meetings in Shanghai and other places in China and an active effort is to be made to encourage the organisation of other American Chambers at Canton, Hongkong, Tsingtau, Tsinanfu, Mukden, Harbin, Chungking and other places. The president, secretary and treasurer of the Shanghai Chamber will act as officers of the Associated American Chambers.

RUSSO-ASIATIC BANK RIGHTS IN RAILWAY DENIED

Soviet Agent At Peking Says Moscow Owns All Bank's Property

(Rosta News Agency)

Peking, Oct. 19.—With reference to the correspondence sent by the Manager of the Russo-Asiatic Bank in Asia to the Peking and Tientsin Times on October 18 on the question of the alleged rights of the Russo-Asiatic Bank vis-a-vis Chinese Eastern Railway, our correspondent called upon A. A. Yoffe, Soviet envoy to China, and obtained from him the following statement:

"I read this correspondence in the above paper and while not touching upon all the questions raised therein—for they will be the subject of the coming Sino-Russian Conference—I would just like to state that with regard to the present status of the Russo-Asiatic Bank the following two interpretations can be suggested only:

"(1) If the Russo-Asiatic Bank claims to be a Russian institution, it ought not to be forgotten that the Russo-Asiatic Bank was nationalised in 1918 by a decree of the Russian Government which converted all the private Banks into one State Bank. It is, of course, understood that the decree referred to was to be made applicable not only with regard to the headquarters, but to the branches of the Bank as well. If they have even had shares to the amount of 5,000,000 gold roubles, and they did not have, under the decree of nationalisation same were to become the property of the Russian State. Thus, there is no legal ground to claim rights of ownership inasmuch as the Russo-Asiatic Bank pretends to be a Russian institution:

"(2) Should the Russo-Asiatic Bank be taken to be a French institution, the Bank has no rights to claim ownership of the Railway because of the provision of the Contract of 1896 to the effect that the shares of the Railway may be kept in Russian and Chinese hands only.

"In both cases there is no ground, nor even a pretext, for the Russo-Asiatic Bank to appear in the role of a proprietor of the Railway.

"As was already stated above, the question of the Chinese Eastern Railway, as a whole, will be brought up for consideration at the coming Sino-Russian Conference."

Italy Tells Allies Soviet Should Be Invited To Parleys

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, Oct. 24.—In a communication to the French Government announcing Italy's agreement with the suggested arrangements for the Near East peace conference Count Sforza expresses the opinion that an understanding should be reached between Great Britain and France with a view to Russia's participation in the second phase of the conference. The Italian Ambassador declares that Russia's admission would confer the right of signing the Treaty but that this need not imply de jure recognition.

Paying Debts in Olde Virginia

In those early days, the English colonists used Virginia tobacco as currency. It was their most valuable crop.

Today, of course, Virginia tobacco is no longer a medium of exchange; but it is the world's best cigarette tobacco—mellow and sweet and fragrant, without a trace of harshness or bite.

Old Mill cigarettes are made of the choicest grades of this famous golden tobacco and nothing else. That's why they taste so good.

Try them today.

MR. S. BARTON NAMED TO HEAD FOOTBALL CLUB

Mr. Sidney Barton, C.M.G., British Consul-General, was elected honorary president of Shanghai Football Club at the organisation's annual general meeting, held at the Rowing Club last evening. Sir Edward C. Pearce and Mr. R. Grimshaw were re-elected vice-presidents.

The following form the committee for the new year: Messrs. W. C. G. Clifford, G. F. Forshaw, M. Tonkin, A. J. Stewart, E. P. Graham Barrow, J. R. Weeks, Ewing, and Mr. A. H. Leslie was named honorary treasurer, and Mr. E. G. Barnes honorary secretary.

The meeting was brief but enthusiastic, Mr. R. Grimshaw presiding, and the forecast for the season was optimistic. Mr. H. F. Marshall gave a short talk in explanation of the new rules. It was decided to increase the annual fees for playing members to $7 from $5 and for non-playing members to $4 from $3.

NEPRUD NAMED PRESIDENT OF BASKET BALL LEAGUE; SEASON PROSPECTS BRIGHT

Carl E. Neprud, the lengthy Rowing Club athlete, was last night selected as President of the Shanghai Foreign Basketball League, while Kenny Irle, the Bearcats star, was chosen as vice-president.

The meeting voted to close entries for the 1922-1923 league season on November first and teams desiring to play in the circuit must file applications with President Neprud at the Chinese Maritime Customs, or Secretary J. E. Doyle at the office of THE CHINA PRESS.

Formal applications in writing must give a tentative list of players and assure the league officials that a team will be carried through the season. The players must satisfy membership requirements of the Rowing Club or the Y. M. C. A., and these will be similar to the simple demands made a year ago.

In all probability, an eight-team league will be formed and the quintets will be even classier than those a year ago. The Bearcats, the American School, Public School, three Rowing Club teams, the Baseball Club and possibly one other five will make up the clubs in the league although nothing definite will be decided until after the entries are filed November first. The committee will attempt to have eight strong quintets in.

Definite plans for the season were postponed last night following the election of officers and a general discussion as to league possibilites.

Athletic Director Joseph O. Van Hook of the American School said that the institution could enter two teams while Levis, the Public School athlete also figured on two fives, one made up of Alumni, which would include most of last year's players. The Bearcats will be in again, with Irle banking on Harry Kingman to play center, while the Rowing Club has a wealth of material.

Men who represented Fearon, Daniel Company, American Trading Company and Andersen, Meyer and Company, are available for a third Rowing Club five, while three Asia Bank stars are also on hand. There will be the usual Bowside and Strokeside teams on the floor this season.

The league has better possibilities than ever in history and the play should be much faster this season. Many newcomers, who are yet unknown, have signified their intention to appear in uniform and the game has taken a leap at the Rowing Club, due to the interest of many Britons in basketball, and unusual activity in rowing and swimming on the part of Americans who have played basketball at home.

Then there is the Baseball Club. Mal Maloney, Jack Smith, Thatch, Howland, Bruce, Wynn and others are willing to play while Kingman, although already to sign with Irle's Bearcats, might play center for Gallop's gang.

American football practice, which starts a week from Sunday, will bring out more basketball material at present not known, and these men will be drafted for one five or the other.

Last season there were ten teams in the circuit but hong quintets may not be in this season, although they are privileged to send their entries along before November first. The success of last season's long and attractive schedule incidentally brought a hearty vote of thanks from last night's meeting to President Kenny Irle and his associates, Dr. Charles G. Irons, and R. B. Nichols. And Nick will shortly be with us again.

Among those who attended the meeting last night in addition to the officers, were Irle, who presided until he resigned in favor of Neprud; Ericson, Jack Smith, Klein, E. T. Nash, Barrett Lewis, Bud Hager, Read Hager, Peter Honigsberg, A. Young, Roy Squires, Van Hook and Lewis.

BAER SAYS "BUGS": KNOCK-KNEES THUMP HARD

They Interfere With Each Other, But Not With Ring Careers

Did you ever see any bowlegged fighters?

This means in rings, and not saloons.

If there are any hoop-kneed boxers in the ring, you can check 'em up on the nails of your right thumb. And none of 'em are champs.

The boys with horseshoe shins are generally plenty pugnacious in gang fights. Whenever you see any umps steeplechasin away from sand lot ball games, there is always a bowlegged boy chasing him. Whenever cops are slugged, the prisoner is always John Smith, aged twenty-two, nationality, bowlegged.

There is something gorilla-like about 'em, with their long arms, circular legs and ferryboat walk. They can win fights on any material but canvas.

Jim Savage, ex-heavyweight, explained it. His theory is that bowlegged birds can't grab any leverage with their legs. Their feet don't mate with their hands. The hardest spanker of all was Bob Fitzsimmons, who was as knock-kneed as a frightened calf.

Most champs are slightly knock-kneed, by nature and not by fear.

Dempsey, Greb, Wilson, Leonard, Kilbane and Lynch have straight stilts. Even the New York Boxing Commision's parchment champs are not bowlegged.

How do you explain this?

We would like to meet you and talk it over.

Provided you are not bowlegged.

Tells How Junk Amoy Sailed Across Pacific

First word of the last leg on the romantic voyage of the junk Amoy and her intrepid skipper, Captain George Waard, who sailed across the Pacific in the 23-ton craft, has just been received, as carried in the Pacific Coast papers.

Captain Waard, who made the voyage across in 91 days, has previously wired and mailed reports of progress to THE CHINA PRESS. Following will be found the complete story of the trip, as related in the columns of the Portland Oregonian:

Victoria, B. C. Sept. 23.—Captain George Waard, a modern Columbus, has spanned the broad Pacific in a 23-ton Chinese fishing junk, with his Chinese wife as helmsman, his 9-year-old son as cook and cabin boy and a foremast crew of three Chinese, of whom two had never before been beyond the confines of Hongkong harbor. The vessel will call at Portland on the way to the canal.

Tired of life on the China coast, Captain Waard decided to return to British Columbia, his boyhood home. So he fashioned a ship, signed on hands and embarked with his family for America. That was at Shanghai, June 21.

5300-MILE VOYAGE ENDED

This week saw the finish of the remarkable voyage of more than 5300 miles of the Pacific. Into Victoria harbor Tuesday stole a fantastic craft, the like of which had never before been seen in these waters. People on shore rubbed their eyes in bewilderment at the strange vessel, with its towering stern, stump of a bow, amazing coat of red and blue and yellow, two bulging, brilliant fish eyes glaring from either side of the stem, three ill-cut sails billying in the breeze and over all the five-stripped flag of the Chinese republic.

The full tale of the 91 days at sea, as told by Captain Waard and his wife, matches the highest flights of the imagination. Second only in interest to the junk itself was a snake skin as great around as a man's thigh and ten feet in length, on view on deck.

"One night," said Captain Waard of this trophy, "when at anchor off the China coast, the barking of our chow dog awakened me. On the China coast you sleep with your gun on your pillow. So I had it handy as I sprang up, thinking pirates perhaps were boarding the ship. The sight to meet my eyes was the snake slithering down from the deck into the cabin. It took four shots to finish the beggar, and then I threw him out on the deck.

SNAKE PUT IN THE POT

"Half a minute later I followed him. But it was too late. These fellows (pointing to the Chinese seamen) already had him chopped up and in the pot. I didn't even get all his skin."

Full of pride in his vessel, the skipper had a thousand instances of her seaworthiness.

"She'll ride anything. If she wouldn't, we wouldn't be here. It was the roughest trip I have ever made, and I have made aplenty. She's here as dry as on the day of her launching, not a drop of water in her.

"Nervous? Not a bit of it. The Shanghai people were when we left. But I knew what was before us—no doctoring, no fresh provisions, no ice chest, hardship unstinted. I knew all that and so did mother.

"Water? Plenty of it for drinking. The tanks carry between 400 and 500 gallons. Washing clothes was out of the question. While we couldn't even commence to think of having a bath. As for the rest there was always a fish to be caught on the road, a bird to be shot, or a porpoise to be harpooned. Food was the least of our worries."

GLAD TRIP IS OVER

But with the trip over, Captain Waard smiled and admitted he was glad. His Chinese wife at the tiller concurred. "How did you like the trip?" she was asked.

"Well, not very much. It was a long way and very rough, but still we are safe."

Little Bob, 9 years old, born in China, with the voice and language of a westerner but the features of a Chinaman, lent his part to the interview.

"I didn't like it very much. Too much sea sick," he admitted. Then, licking first the cone in one hand, added, "Victoria more better than Shanghai. Ice cream more cheap here."

"If it wasn't for her we wouldn't be here," said the valiant skipper of his wife. "She can handle the ship better than I can, and the crew hop about when she gives orders. No, she isn't the mate, she's the master."

CAPTAIN IS SEA PRODUCT

Big and brawny, Waard is a thorough product of the sea, bronzed and wrinkled by the suns and winds of many waters. Mild-mannered and affable, he seems to have something of the imperturbability of the ocean itself, gained through a lifetime of voyaging on the broad bosom. A Hollander by birth, he came to Canada as a lad and went to sea with the sealing fleet from Victoria at the age of 11. Years later he went to China.

The Amoy, as his junk is known, was built at Amoy at the cost of four months' labor and some thousands of dollars. She is 69 feet over all, has an 18-foot beam and five-foot draft. Her sails are so arranged that one man can manipulate them all if necessary. The vessel is identical in every respect of hull and lines with the fishing junk of the China sea, even to the customary eyes. To the Chinaman the ship's eyes are more important than her boats. They not only have to be there, but they must be placed there on certain days—joss days—with behind them a bit of money and a scrap of paper with some scribbling on it, all very significant ceremonies to the China seaman. Were the junk not so adorned, he reasons, how could it see in the dark? Ships, like people, have need of eyes to get safely about.

The tale of the trip is a stirring one. Scarcely had Shanghai been left behind when typhoons swept down. The 1200 miles to Hakodate, North Japan, reached July 12, was one continual struggle. Six days later Hakodate was left, but the storm rushed up from the east and south, driving the junk ever north and north, until, passing among the Aleutian islands, it burst into the Behring sea. Repeatedly the rudder was carried away, to be repaired only to be swept away again. Half the distance was covered with a jury rudder dragging the vessel back. Calms and gales succeeded each other.

Unalaska, in the Aleutians, was sought for refuge August 28 and left again September 1. On this last leg of the voyage better luck was met with. A fair breeze sent him down the coast and in past Flattery.

Now that he is safely on the Pacific coast, Waard intends to navigate its entire length in his strange craft, pass through the canal and up the Atlantic side. In Seattle, Portland, San Francisco and other ports en route he will exhibit his ship. When he is through with the American continent he plans to cross the Atlantic to Europe

Church Will Unite Faith And Science

New York, Sept. 26.—Clergymen, physicians and psychologists will co-operate in the treatment of patients in a new hospital shortly to be erected here, according to announcement of Dr. Edward S. Cowles. Dr. Cowles has just been appointed by the Episcopal Church commission in the ministry of healing to have charge of the project.

The institution will study the influence of mind over body in the healing of disease, and will be the only one of its kind in America. It will combat "half baked religious enthusiasts and faith healing pretenders."

Methods of certain widely heralded mental and faith healers are characterised by Dr. Cowles and his associates as "bunk." They regard human ailments as neither entirely mental nor physical, and hold clergymen and psychologists can aid in cures.

"Mental treatment where body treatment is ignored is obviously unfair to the patient, to mankind and to God," said Dr. Cowles. "The hospital we will establish will accept patients for treatment both of the body and the mind.

"Doctors will take faith healing ministers into the institution and show them the cause of physical ailments caused by mental diagnosis of physical ailments."

The new institution, Dr. Cowles said, will have wards for philosophers, clergymen, medical experts, psychoanalists, metaphsicians, sociologists, Christian Scientists, Emmanuelists, and every denomination of healer.

The following letter has been received by Mrs. E. M. Gull, Chairman of the British Women's Association:

Taichow-fu,
Chekiang.
October 6, 1922.

Dear Madam,—It is with deep gratitude that we write again to thank you for your most kind effort in presenting before the British Women's Association our appeal on behalf of the distressed people in the Taichow Prefecture, and we would ask you to convey to the Association our very grateful thanks for the ready and most generous response they have made to the Appeal. The money already sent will go towards relieving much suffering and want in this City and Prefecture. You will perhaps already have heard that during this last week a third flood has come upon us, the waters being only a foot less deep than the previous two. Your donation is thus doubly valued. We would also express our great appreciation of your further effort to help us by making another appeal through the columns of the Shanghai press and we trust that that may meet with as ready and generous response as that which we forwarded you.

We remain, yours very gratefully,

M. A. Leathers,
C. M. S. Pastor,
T. Thomas,

CHAMBERLAIN OFFERS FEALTY TO NEW REGIME

Defines Position Of Himself And Followers At Dinner

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 23.—Mr. Austen Chamberlain defined his and his followers' position at a dinner of former Coalition Ministers and their supporters at the Hotel Victoria tonight.

In the course of his speech Mr. Chamberlain said: "We are members of the Unionist Conservative Party, which we have served faithfully, and we intend to remain members of it. We do not contemplate going and forming another party. We will urge our views on our own Party."

Mr. Chamberlain said he was ready to plead guilty to the accusation that he thought too little of the Party. He emphasised that the difference between Conservatives was unity of Party or unity of the Nation. He had chosen the latter. He saw no reason against co-operation with the new Government. Mr. Chamberlain did not believe the new Government would be able to carry on except by means of a Coalition.

Mr. Chamberlain said he could not have served with Mr. Lloyd George as he had and part, as their ways were now parting through no wish of theirs, without paying a tribute to the former Premier. He declared that his supporters would go to the election in loyalty to the Party.

Earl Balfour defended the action of Mr. Chamberlain's followers in a spirited manner and disagreed with throwing off Mr. Lloyd George from both personal and political standpoints.

Lord Birkenhead in a hard hitting speech declared that nobody should drive them from the Unionist Party. He denounced the attitude of the press in attacking the former Government's recent Near East policy. The Government had been left to take its decision alone. Their Allies were not the English press but in New Zealand and Australia whose sons lay buried in the graves which would have been defiled but for the Government's action.

Unionists Elect Bonar Law Leader

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 23.—The meeting of the Unionist Party today unanimously elected Mr. Bonar Law leader. Mr. Bonar Law has consequently accepted the Premiership.

The King granted an audience to Mr. Bonar Law who undertook the formation of a Ministry. He advised the dissolution of Parliament which, it is understood, will take place by Royal Proclamation on October 26.

Mr. Lloyd George was granted a farewell audience by the King.

In contrast to the Carlton Club meeting there was much enthusiasm at today's proceedings at the Hotel Cecil. On arriving Mr. Bonar Law was surrounded by a cheering crowd. He stopped and smilingly posed for the cinematographers. The meeting sang "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" when he rose to speak.

In the course of his speech Mr. Bonar Law said he hoped that now the Party's confidence had been given him, the Unionists who had voted against the Carlton Club resolution would join hands with their Unionist brothers and go to the country as a united party. They differed only regarding the best methods of succeeding in their policy.

He declared that this was not the time for introducing big schemes which might benefit the Empire, however dear they were to his heart. They should rather hope for a period of quietness than one of fierce controversy. It is understood that this referred to Tariff Reform.

Continuing, Mr. Bonar Law said that the Irish Constitution must be given effect. Referring to Mr. Lloyd George, he said that he was sure that they would have a pretty stiff tussle but he hoped they would still be good friends.

Afterwards Mr. Bonar Law declared he would open his campaign and submit a definite policy on Thursday. The meeting voted unanimous thanks for Mr. Austen Chamberlain's services.

The assembly comprised 439 members, including 152 Peers and 67 Parliamentary candidates.

The election of Mr. Bonar Law was proposed by Earl Curzon, who presided, and was seconded by Mr. Stanley Baldwin.

A resolution was adopted promising Mr. Bonar Law the full support of the Unionists now and after the election.

Lord Curzon said that the country wanted stability not sensation, peace at home as well as abroad and no extension but a curtailment of responsibilities.

Mr. Bonar Law said he would define his policy in his speech at Glasgow on October 28.

London, Oct. 23.—During the proceedings at the Unionist meeting at the Hotel Cecil today Earl Curzon clearly indicated that he will continue as Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs.

Mr. Bonar Law expressed the opinion that the best way of dealing with postwar recovery of the country and the world was to leave free play to individual initiative and to avoid attempts at social improvement which at another time would be most desirable. As little interference as possible was necessary either by legislation or administration.

He adopted a sympathetic attitude towards Ireland and said that the Treaty must be given a fair chance. He dwelt on the unparallelled difficulties of the task of the people now attempting to govern Ireland.

The Conservatives could not shut off all responsibility but ought to do everything in their power to help the Provisional Government towards success as long as the members of the Provisional Government were honestly trying to carry out the Treaty.

Mr. Bonar Law concluded with a significant allusion to his health. He said that if the burden became intolerable on that account he would not expect the Party to press him to remain if he asked to be set free.

Lloyd-George's Leeds Speech Is Assailed

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 23.—Mr. Lloyd George's cautious and non-committal speech at Leeds disappointed expectation by the fact that he did not enunciate a new program and did nothing to lessen the existing political uncertainties.

The confusion of his defence of the Coalition record is freely criticised in the vast majority of papers, while his wholehearted praise of Mr. Austen Chambelain, Earl Balfour, Sir Robert Horne and other non-revolting Unionist leaders is not regarded as sufficient indication that the formation of a center party is definitely contemplated.

The general view is that the election will prove a solvent of existing party relations for the Coalition Liberals are likely to fare badly as they will be generally opposed by Conservatives or Independent Liberals.

A good example of the keenness of the contest is Northumberland and Durham where there are 24 Labor condidates. 18 Independent Liberals, 18 Unionists and 11 supporters of Mr. Lloyd George prepared to fight for 28 seats.

Spaniards See German Duplicity

(French Wireless)

Paris, Oct. 23.—The Spanish press echoes the bitter complaints against Germany in connection with the collapse of the mark. It considers that Germany has deceived the world both before, during and after the war.

El Sol quotes American statistics, according to which American citizens are reported to have bought for a sum equivalent to 6,960,000,000 pesetas marks which today represent less than 400,000,000 pesetas. Britain is reported to have lost 5,000,000,000 pesetas already.

The same journal, which cannot be suspected of Germanophobia, declares:

"When one sums up the total, one will see that the Germans have abstracted from the foreigner by means of their paper marks a sum several times higher than that paid by them as an indemnity for the war.

Perhaps the French are the only foreigners who have not succumbed to the temptation because they at length know their neighbors.

Facisti Gather; 35,000 Will Meet

Tokio, Oct. 23.—The Premier is somewhat indisposed and will probably require a fortnight's holiday.

PACT APPROVED

(Reuter's Service)

Berlin, Oct. 22.—It is reported from Moscow that the Soviet Government has ratified an agreement with the Otto Wolff Consortium comprising a number of large German industrial works whereby the Russo-German Trading Company will be established with a capital of 300,000 gold roubles and will have a trade concession for import and export. The Consortium will grant the Company a goods credit of 7,500,000 gold roubles and a further 5,000,000 gold roubles to the Russian Government.

Arcadians Return To Land Of Fathers

(From The Boston Globe)

August, the month of golden harvests and prayers of entreaty to St. Eulalie for the blessing of her sunshine has ever been a month of poignant memories in the heart of the Acadian people. For 167 years the Acadian people have carried with them the memory of the faieful August in 1755, which witnessed the deportation of the Acadians from the shores of Minas Basin. August 16 of the present year saw a miracle wrought in the village of Grand Pre, when a host of Acadian descendants gathered on the very site of the tragedy of expulsion and took possession of their heritage—historic ground on which they consecrated to the memory of their fathers the Acadian Memorial Chapel.

Exiled for nearly 170 years their wanderings in strange, far-off villages and cities, the race scattered to the four corners of the continent it seemed incredible that the Acadians should again be restored to that fertile Gaspereau Valuley, cleared, tilled and enriched by the farms which they had homesteaded in the early settlement of Acadia. Like the children of Israel returning to Jerusalem, hundreds of representatives of the Acadians expelled in 1755 wended their way back to Grand Pre this day of the laying of the corner stone of the Acadian Memorial Chapel.

ON OLD CHURCH SITE

Representing the four hundred thousand Acadians in Canada and the two hundred and forty thousand in Louisiana, and the large number scattered through the new England States, the pilgrimage of Acadians bowed reverently before the little stone church. Built in the architecture of the Normandy churches of the years 1700 to 1800, the stone quarried from a neighboring quarry, the Acadian Memorial Chapel, erected upon the very site where once stood the old St. Charles' church had a peculiar appeal to the Acadians returning from exile.

Throughout the long decades only the stalwart sweep of willows that shaded the old St. Charles' church and the moss grown stone curb of the old well with its picturespue sweep, remained to tell the story of Grand Pre, the home of Acadians.

John Federick Herbin, a lone Acadian descendant returning to dwell upon the site that had been the home of his mother's race thus found the historic ground. He sought to resurrect interest in the old Acadian settlement and, seeking relics, found a deserted square of ground surdug from cellar ruins proclaimed it to be the site of the old St. Charles' church. For many years Mr. Herbin has worked collecting history, relics and acquiring the site of the old church and burying ground. Eventually the site became the property of the Dominion Atlantic railway, which lent its aid in furthering the project in establishing the Acadian Memorial park.

AN IMPRESSIVE SCENE

One year ago this site came into the possession of the Acadian descendants of Canada and the United States. Vigorously the Acadian people have labored during the past year to erect the chapel.

A more impressive scene than that enacted when the Acadians kneeling on the grass took possession of their heritage would be impossible to conceive. As the voices of the Acadian people broke forth into the singing of their national hymn, "Ave Maris Stella," hearts thrilled with the spirit of triumph. Lamentations of 167 years' wanderings were forgotten in the glad hour of restoration. From the choir of the church there came the low chanting of the Gregorian chant by Acadian choristers, and the chanting of the dedication mass by the Acadian priests.

Until sunset the conservation services continued with the blessing and laying of the corner stone. The service was conducted by Rev. E. A. LeBlanc, bishop of St. John, New Brunswick, the first Acadian bishop in the maritime provinces and a direct descendant of the historic Rene LeBlanc.

HOLD NO EMNITY

Reference to the deportation occasionally fell from the lips of the orators, but it was Dr. Webster, the student of history from Shediac, who voiced the sentiment dominating the thought of the people, that the tragic event was in the manner of the times and customs. The expulsion emanated not with the British government, but with New England and Governor Lawrence of Nova Scotia, Dr. Webster said.

The statue of Evangeline close to the chapel is an impressive feature of the memorial. Modeled by Philippe Hebert, a descendant of Etinne Hebert, one of the earliest settlers of Grand Pre, the figure of Evangeline depicts the Acadian maid, immortalised by the poem of Longfellow, as looking back upon the country of her people the day of deportation.

DISCHARGED MEN SEEK TO RECOVER DEPOSIT MONEY

A tangled tale of employment, unemployment, and subsequent attempts to recover guarantee money, with a climax of assault, was unwound before Assessor Allman and Magistrate Kwan in the Mixed Court yesterday when two coolies were charged with beating up an old man.

The complainant stated that his son had been engaged by the accused to work as a watchman and had put up $40. He was not paid and when witness pressed for the return of the money he and five or six others were assaulted by a crowd of about ten, including the accused.

Mr. H. D. Rodger, appearing for the accused, stated that Mr. Tuck, of the Oriental Secret Service, had engaged about 60 watchmen and 4 sub-watchmen, demanding that they put up $40 security. This was done and after they had worked about a month they were dismissed and Mr. Tuck still had the money. The watchmen were all handed receipts for it. These watchmen were trying to hold counsel's clients responsible. They were two of the sub-watchmen themselves and could not get their own money back.

Mr. Rodger suggested that the Court tell the complainants to go to the British Court.

The assault case was dismissed and Mr. Rodger later appeared before the Court and stated that the old man had grabbed hold of his client, demanding the money again. If the Court would tell the men to go to his office, he said, he would see to the matter for them. They could bring their receipts to him and he would not charge them any fee but would send the receipts to the British Court, where he thought he could get the case through under "forma pauperis."

The Magistrate then advised the complainants to do this.

Victor In Glider Contest Finished After Darkness Fell

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Oct. 23.—The French airman, M. Maneyrolle, the holder with a flight of 3 hours 22 minutes of the world's glider record, previously held by the German, Herr Hentzen, relates his impressions in the Matin.

Before his record M. Maneyrolle had only flown for 71 seconds. He finished his record flight in the dark after he had heard by the cheering that the world's record had been broken.

The Under-Secretary for the Air, M. Laurent Eynac, is flying to London to attend the second session of the International committee for aerial navigation. He will congratulate M. Maneyrolle on behalf of the Government.

Paris Oct. 23.—At Le Bourget Aerodrome Adjudant Moutonnier made an attempt to beat the American altitude record of 10,093 metres. He reached 10,023 metres, beating the French record held by M. Casale of 9620 metres.

Chang To Found School Of Medicine

(Chung Mei Service)

Peking, Oct. 21.—A telegraphic report from Fengtien tells of General Chang Tso-ling's intention to establish an army medical school. This school is proposed to be founded in Fengtien with Wang Chung-chen, the chief military doctor, at its head.

A student body of 300 young men will be selected from the Three Eastern Provinces and given a medical training. An annual budget of $30,000, it is estimated, will run the school and efforts will be made to open it in a short time.

Confess Train Wreck Which Killed Two

Charles Uselis, Joe Popauritch and John Petrowski

To spread a campaign of terror, with the intention of drawing union engineers and firemen into refusing to operate trains, and thus to win the battle of the striking shopmen, was the reason assigned in the confessions of Charles Uselis, Joe Popauritch and John Petrowski for wrecking the "Million Dollar" Michigan Central Express, near Gary, Indiana. The fireman and engineer were killed. The men are Russians and members of the Communist Party. They said they didn't care how many persons were killed.

Land Encroachment Case Opens In British Court

Hearing opened yesterday in the British Supreme Court before Judge Peter Grain of a suit for damages of land encroachment that was filed by Mr. F. J. Schuhl, as trustee of United States Paoshan Lot 219 against Zau Dong Kyi and in connection with the action application for an injunction is being made to the court.

Mr. Tycho Wing appeared for Mr. Schuhl, and Mr. M. B. Brown represented the defendant.

Mr. Wing said the trustee had the lease of certain land and a permanent lease from the Chinese Republic. A plan was put in to facilitate reference. The boundary ran from the road almost without interruption on the left side in a straight line from north to south, which the defendant denied in his written statement. The only thing that was admitted was that the defendant owned land to the west and south of the plaintiff. The particulars were rather elaborate and difficult. The defendant had erected a wall 40 feet in height or thereabouts, and the foundations of the wall extended below the line of the plaintiff's. The defendant had not only encroached above the soil but also below by putting his foundations ten inches below the plaintiff's.

The Judge: Are you asking for damages for that as well?—Certainly.

Mr. Wing went on to state that the difficulty in this case was the question of the remedy. The plaintiff's land was very peculiar and was all in length and nothing in breadth. The only use that land like that could be was for the building of Chinese houses, and an alleyway would have to be built for access to the house. The building scheme was to have an alleyway on the right and to place the houses with their back parts abutting on the property of the defendant. If the plaintiff were to have the houses in any other way they would be facing west. Because of the heat during summer a house facing west is not looked upon with favor by Chinese inhabitants. There was another reason, Mr. Wing pointed out, in having the house facing west for the difficulty of egress and ingress would be very great.

The question of the remedy was, of course, of importance. The plaintiff was asking not only for damages which he was entitled to for the encroachment, but he was also asking for an injunction in respect to the wall that had been built. Mr. Wing added that there was a considerable amount of authority on the matter. It was a case which satisfied the requirements of the law on this subject. It was a case where damages would not compensate adequately the plaintiff, as the house that plaintiff could build now would not be a good house. The configuration of the house would be peculiar, and if built now would not be a paying proposition. Although in certain places the encroachment was ten inches in some places it was 19 inches.

Mr. Wing mentioned that the moment any signs of the encroachment was noticed, which commenced with the depositing of building materials, the plaintiff objected at once. Correspondence proceeded, and action taken in the Mixed Court. It was not one of that class of cases where the plaintiff has allowed the defendant to go on and let him get into difficulties and then started action. The plaintiff had consistently objected and objected at the earliest moment. In this case the injunction was the only remedy which would adequately respect the interests of the part.

The Judge—That would mean the pulling down of the wall?—Yes.

Mr. Schuhl then went into the witness box and testified to the lot U. S. No. 219 being transferred to his name on October 15, 1921 by another American Mr. Heen, on the acquisition of the lot by Shun Ko Ding. The latter was his client and plaintiff acted as his trustee. Plaintiff was still his trustee.

The case is proceeding.

Stevens, Consortium Head, In Peking

(China Press Service)

Peking, Oct. 24.—Mr. Frederick W. Stevens, the American banker and financier, for many years one of the leading Consortium advocates and heads of J. P. Morgan and Company of New York city, is back in Peking, after spending several months in the United States, where, he says, he did nothing regarding the Consortium.

Transcending merely financial interests, the importance of Mr. Steven's trip is always admitted by politicians, financiers and militarists here, although it is an annual affair, says the Peking Standard. This is especially true in circles which are anxious to receive information regarding the Consortium. Mr. Stevens will disappoint those in favor of a loan.

The Consortium, according to Mr. Stevens, is exactly where it was a year ago. There have been no developments, owing to the fact that the bankers have not brought up the question publicly. Still, they may have discussed it privately.

Asked why the Consortium was made up in New York, instead of in Peking, which presents greater advantages and where no doubt the interest is centered, Mr. Stevens wished to be excused. He had already discussed that phase of the Consortium in speeches made in this city, he explained. Therefore, until further developments were made, he had said all there was to say.

Asked what in his opinion were the advantages a Chinese loan at the present moment would bring to the country in the future. Mr. Stevens answered he did not wish to predict anything in that line. However, he is ready to act on behalf of the American bankers if the Chinese wish to talk business. They can find him at his residence in Peking until next summer, when he expects to leave for his annual visit to New York.

During the next few days, Mr. Stevens will renew old acquaintances, calling on his Chinese as well as foreign friends, but he will not discuss business with them.

Borneo Company Cuts Its Dividend

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 23.—The report of the British North Borneo Company for the year 1921 shows the total receipts as £404,000, expenditure as £256,000 and the surplus as £147,000 compared with £226,000 in 1920. The dividend for the year is three percent.

The serious decline in the net revenue as compared with 1920 is due to the fact that there is little sign of revival in that part of the Eastern hemisphere, including Malya, China, the Dutch Indies and Borneo.

In view of the necessity for continued assistance to the subsidiary companies it is essential as far as possible to conserve the company's cash resources.

Exchange Fluctuations

Asia Banking Corporation

October 24, 1922

Spot bar silver was up 3-16d and forward ⅛d in London yesterday.

The New York price advanced to 67⅞ cents and the London-New York cross rate delined to 444¾.

The only changes in our official quotations here today were a drop in the Gold Dollar rate to 72¼, in the Rupee rate to 247½ and a rise in the Franc rate to 1015.

Our market opened on the firm side, became very strong indeed during the course of the day but eased off slightly at the close.

At the opening a small amount of business in Sterling was done at 3s. 3 7/8 d. for all deliveries to January and in Gold Dollars at 73⅞. Banks, however, were good sellers at these rates and the market firmed up until as high as 3s. 4⅛ d. for Sterling and 75 for Gold Dollars was done, however, banks were inclined to buy at these rates and the market eased off slightly, closing with sellers of Sterling for December-January delivery at 3s. 4⅜ d. and of Gold Dollars at 74¾ with buyers at 3s. 4½ d. and 75 respectively.

There were sellers of Yen at the close at 64⅝ and buyers at 64½. Banks were quoting 3s. 5d. for Sterling bills, 76 for Gold Dollar bills and 1075 for Franc bills.

In view of the further severe depression in Francs, banks were unwilling buyers of this currency.

India again bought silver in London yesterday and China sold. The market is reported to have closed steady.

London bought fairly heavily in the New York market, which is reported as being on the firm side.

DISCLOSE CAUSES OF REVOLTS IN JOHANNESBURG

Aim Was To Secure Form Of Republican Govt. Is Committee Decision

(Reuter's Service)

Pretoria, Oct. 23.—The report of the Martial Law Commission, which enquired into the revolt at Johannesburg, ascribes the revolt to the desire of Nationalist elements to profit by industrial disturbance in order to obtain a republican form of Government, to the formation of strikers' commandos and to their gradual conversion into military units, to the strikers' belief that armed assistance would be forthcoming from the Free State and Transvaal, to the industrial leaders' weakness in allowing armed commandos to usurp their power and also to intrigues of the communist Party.

The Commission commends the Government's military measures which overawed the revolutionaries thereby saving bloodshed.

FRENCH POLICY PACIFIED SYRIA MISSION REPORTS

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Oct. 23.—The French economic mission which has been visiting the Levant has returned to Marseilles. M. Lenail, the Chairman, declares:

"Syria is completely pacified, thanks to the wise policy of France towards Turkey and the proclamation of the French mandate by the League of Nations. Commercial exchanges have been resumed between France and Syria and roads have been constructed."

M. Lenail affirmed his confidence in the future of Syria.

The Abbe Weterle, deputy for Alsace, one of the members of the mission, emphasised the superiority of the methods employed in Syria over those, "which in Palestine reduced to nothing the native administration."

INDIFFERENCE OF CHINA NATURAL DECLARES TIMES

Cathay Historians May Make Note That Foreign Devils Ceased From Troubling

(Reuter's Service)

London, Oct. 23.—The Times in a leading article on The Peace of Cathay, referring to Mr. Bertrand Russell's opinion in his book The Problem of China that Chinese civilisation is in some respects superior to the Western, says:

"Behind all the varying views of China is the sense that Chinese society is utterly different from ours, the only serious rival to ours in the process of history, which has the secret of perpetuity and lifts its eyebrows at our restlessness.

"The Chinese have made up their minds about things where we incessantly argue and try huge experiments that to them would not be even worth trying. We may try to despise this indifference as barbarous but all the while we cannot help remembering that it was before we were and may endure when we are no longer.

"The Chinese of the future are not likely to trouble themselves with the history of our decline and fall but they may append a note to their histories to the effect that in a certain century the foreign devils of the West ceased to molest them and life became altogether more agreeable."

Propose Buddhist Temple In Kuling

(Independent News Service)

Hankow, Oct. 20.—The Hankow Buddhist Association has received from Taishu, a leading propagandist of Buddhism, and Mr. Liang Chi-chao, one of the greatest of living Chinese literati, lecturer and a retired politician of great influence, the proposal that a building for the National Buddhist Association should be erected in Kuling, the popular summer resort for foreigners in Central China.

Kuling is believed by votaries of Buddhism to be a place where a great Buddhist of the past was residing as a hermit delivering lectures to his disciples.

Mr. Yen Wei-hsin, secretary of the Hankow Buddhists Association and formerly Chief of Staff of the 8th Division who is now in retirement, has drawn up contribution forms and prospectus which will be sent to Buddhists in Hankow, Peking, Tientsin and Shanghai, among whom are many leading officials and merchants.

Object To Report Of Treasury Chief

(China Press Service)

Washington, Oct. 24.—Representative Frear of Wisconsin today sent a letter to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon charging that he was responsible for overthrowing congressional action by his recent ruling that Section 220 of the Revenue Law, designed to reach corporations with large surplus profits, did not apply to the projected 400 percent stock dividend announced by the Standard Oil Company of New York.

New Aero Wings Double Capacity

(China Press Service)

New York, Oct. 24.—The development of a new type airplane wing for the United States Mail Service, which will more than double the carrying capacity of an airplane was announced here today by Aeromarine, Inc.

Planes with the new wings carried 1,032 pounds of mail from New York to Washington on a trial flight instead of the usual 400 pounds, according to the announcement.

Wedding

KERR-PATTERSON

Mr. George C. Kerr, manager of the Mission Book Company here, and Miss June Patterson of Tientsin were married at the residence of the Woman's Medical staff in the Methodist Mission at Tientsin on October 18. The Rev. E. J. Aeschliman performed the ceremony.

Miss Ortha Lane acted as maid of honor, and the bridgeroom was attended by Mr. Leon M. Bocker of Peking University. After the ceremony the newlyweds left for a honeymoon in the Western Hills. They will be at home in Shanghai after November 1.

Tuchun Li May Have To Disgorge

Tuchun Li Hou-chi, who was driven from Foochow when it fell to the Southern trops, is now on board the Chinese cruiser 'Hai Yung,' according to the Chinese press, and will be held there until he delivers up part of the money he is alleged to have obtained in Foochow.

IN THE FRENCH MIXED COURT IN SHANGHAI

Roger & Gallet represented by Me Le Gouellec & du Pac de Marsoulies — CASE vs. — Wang Sing Fou, manager of the Wah Shing & Co. Factory, represented by Me Nouveau.

JUDGMENT

Considering the petition of the Plaintiff dated the 3rd of August, 1922:

Considering the answer of the Defendant dated the 5th September, 1922:

Whereas, at the eighth August, 1922, in pursuance of a search warrant from that court, detectives of the French Police, assisted by the International Municipal Police, have found at the Wah Shing Soap Factory of Yochow Road, a plant for the purpose of manufacturing soap.

That they have found in the presence of the Defendant, pretty large stocks of soap, boxes, labels and panels carrying the mark: "Savon Santal Wood, R. T. N. & Co. Paso": that a mould serving for the manufacture of this soap has been seized and brought before the court, also boxes of this product purchased from different stores in Shanghai: that nine account books, in Chinese, have been seized at the Yochow Road Factory and two account books, in Chinese, at the office of the Defendant, at the firm Yah Wou Tong, 118 Shantung Road.

Whereas at the sitting, the Defendant claimed, but without bringing proofs, that the Wah Shing soap factory is the property of a Japanese firm, that he was only the manager of the mentioned factory, receiving a salary only, and has been more specially entrusted with the sale of their products.

Whereas, the imitation by the Wah Shing factory of the Santal Wood Soap of Roger and Gallet is manifest, that if the exterior aspect of the boxes of the soap manufactured at the Wah Shing factory is little different to that of the original boxes, if the foreign characters printed on the Wah Shing boxes differ with those printed on Roger and Gallet's boxes, the difference is so small that it cannot be remarked by the great majority of the Chinese customers for whom it is difficult to read foreign writing.

Whereas, on the other hand, the examination of the inside of boxes of soap of Roger and Gallet and Wah Shing leave no doubt of the intention of the Defendant to imitate the product manufactured by the Plaintiff: that the presentation, the packing and the label are identical, that one should not pay attention to a small difference in the particulars: and much more that the Chinese label on the guarantee wrapper of the soaps of the two firms bear an inscription in Chinese characters which has the pronunciation "Roger and Gallet, Paris": that the only difference in both inscriptions concerns the character "KIA" which is written by the plaintiff and by the Wah Shing:

That this difference should not be considered, as the pronunciation of both characters being just the same: that confusion is unavoidable, these characters have no determinate Chinese word corresponding but represent phonetical sounds of a foreign patronymical name.

Whereas, besides the notice in the European language printed on the paper which covers the infringed soap shows as to the place where it has been manufactured and stored, precisely those shown on the Plaintiff's that this notice shows clearly the fraudulent intention of the forger.

Whereas, there is infringment of the mark when, notwithstanding to a slight difference in the form, the whole appearance presents a similitude which can induce customers to purchase it as the correct article; that infringment should also be recognised in the event when one establishes a similitude of the nature to deceive the eyes and the ears, similitude which is not resultant from an accidental encounter but which has been manifestly studied in the unlawful aim to bring on the confusion between the marks.

Whereas, the soap sold by the Defendant is exactly a studied infringment of the soap of the Plaintiff: that such infringment has been characterized in law and in fact:

Whereas the infringment is an offence contemplated and punishable by the Article 243 of the Provisional Criminal Code of the Chinese Republic:

Whereas, on the other hand the Defendant claims that the Wah Shing firm is a Japanese concern, registered at the Japanese Consulate, but regardless he has not pleaded his being of that foreign nationality at the time of an agreement made on the 7th July 1922 and signed by him, with the firm Messrs. Harvie, Cooke & Co., who were suing him for imitation and infringment of a similar nature, of the soap "Violet Toilet Soap" manufactured by the firm Colgate & Co., Ltd., of New Jersey, U. S. A.: that the books of the Wah Shing firm are kept in Chinese and have Chinese stamps according to the Chinese Law:

Whereas in the meantime the Japanese Consulate intervened during the trial to affirm the Japanese nationality of the Wah Shing firm and the registration of that concern at the said Consulate on the 26th May, 1919.

Whereas the Defendant is a Chinese, that he is sued for personal actions by a French firm, whereas, besides, he is living for a long time in Shanghai: that he knows very well the commercial customs and practices of the place, that he could not be unware that the product of the sale of which he has been more particularly entrusted were an evident imitation and infringment of the Plaintiff's "Santal Wood Soap": that he could not be unaware of this fact, as previously he had acknowledged by a written document his guilt in another case relative to soap which had been manufactured at the same place and in the same conditions as the present.

Whereas at least he has been accomplice of an offence punishable by the Chinese Law:

WHEREFORE

The Court judging in equity after consultation:

Sentences Wang Sing Fou to a fine of Mex. $200 for accomplicity in the offence of infringment and further sentences him to pay to the firm Roger and Gallet the sum of $500 for damages:

Says, that the boxes and stocks seized at the offices of the defendant No. 118 Shantung Road be confiscated:

Says, that the stocks and products seized at the factory at Yochow Road will be handed to the Japanese Consulate General to be disposed of at their (J. C. G.) convenience.

Refers the Plaintiff for any claim he may have against the firm Wah Shing & Co., to that competent Court.

Suspends the sale of the infringment of Roger and Gallet's soap through the Chinese stores in the French Concession:

Grants to the said firm one months delay to clear of these infringed products.

Orders at the Defendant's expenses, the insertion of this judgment in two leading organs of the Chinese press and two of the foreign press of Shanghai at the selection of the Plaintiff.

Sentences further Wang Sing Fou to the costs of the present case, same to be $52.85.

Judgment delivered at Shanghai the 4th October, 1922.

Too Many College Men?

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 21.—The opportunities of the colleges should be increasingly reserved to the "aristocracy of brains"—men intellectually eager and alert—if democracy is to be a "quality product rather than simply a quantity one, and if excellence and effectiveness are to displace the mediocrity toward which democracy has such a tendency to skid," said President Ernest M. Hopkins of Dartmouth College, in addressing the student body today.

President Hopkins urged the undergraduates to commit themselves to the "utter elimination of the spirit of propaganda in the affairs of this world, and in the discussion of those of the next."

"There could be no more genuine consecration to the principle of the search for truth than in militant opposition to and repudiation of this spirit," he asserted, "whether it emanates from the manufacturers' association, the offices of organised labor, the editor's column, the preacher's pulpit, or the college officer's desk. The principle and the method are invariably wrong, however worthy may be the motive."

Declaring that too many men were going to college, President Hopkins said the opportunities for obtaining a higher education by way of the college course were "definitely a privilege and not at all a universal right."

The funds of the colleges and universities, he said, are not limitless, and it therefore is necessary that a "working theory" be sought to "define the individuals who shall make up the group to whom, in justice to the public good, the privilege shall be extended and to specify those from whom the privilege should be withheld."

Selection of applicants for admission to colleges, President Hopkins said, is a "two-fold necessity: on the one hand that men incapable of profiting by the advantages which the college offers, or indisposed, shall not be withdrawn from useful work to spend their time profitlessly, in idleness acquiring false standards of living; and on the other hand that the contribution which the college is capable of making to the lives of competent men and, through them, to society shall not be too largely lessened by the slackening of pace due to the presence of men indifferent, or wanting in capacity."

"We hear much of men seeking an education," he continued, "but too often they are only seeking membership in a social organisation which has a reputation for affording an education, from which reputation they expect to benefit.

"It would be incompatible with all of the conceptions of democracy to assume that the privilege of higher education should be restricted to any class defined by the accident of birth, or by the fortuitous circumstance of possession of wealth.

"I wish to safeguard carefully these statements, however, by iteration and reiteration that it behooves all of us to avoid confusing the symbols and the facts of intellectuality and I should hope that under any circumstances we might avoid confusing mental gymnastics and facility in appropriating the ideas of others with genuine thinking."

Inhumanity And Man

Societies for the prevention of cruelty to animals are celebrating the centenary of the first modern enactment in Great Britain for protecting the rights of animals, which received royal assent in 1822 despite opposition from Canning and Peel, says The New York Times. Richard Martin, who procured the act, was dubbed "Humanity Martin" by his friend, George IV. He deserved the title on more grounds than one. His sympathy with animals was so keen that he once haled a reluctant jackass into court and exhibited the wounds which its owner's club had made. Yet he was a diligent and delighted duellist. Hearing that Martin was to enter a political campaign in his native Galway, the King asked who would win. "The survivor, Sire," said Martin. It may still be noted that the last of all objects of humanity is man.

This is not altogether the fault of the humane. Legal rights may be involved. The factory system had debased the nation for many decades before a way found for insuring humane hours and working conditions without abriding the right of contract. Even yet no means has been invented for preventing the degradation of women workers in the factory without imposing hardship on other women in skilled trades that involve occasional periods of overtime. Almost fifty of our industries requiring a "continuous process" have resorted to the twelve-hour day and the seven-day week. The result is far too often "old age at forty," but the chief obstacle to reform lies in the fact that workers prefer the long shift for the greater income it brings.

Nor is racking, machine-driven overtime the worst foe of toiling humanity. As yet we have no means of settling industrial strife except the wasteful, embittering strike. And with something approaching a periodic cycle unemployment eats up the slender savings of toil. Yet union leaders fight the administrative tribunal tooth and nail; and when Secretary Hoover summoned his conference on unemployment, the first systematic effort to cope with recurrent catastrophe, Mr. Gompers attended only on condition that the unions be not asked to bear their share in the common sacrifice.

All honor to "Humanity Martin" and to the admirable societies that have carried on the great movement he began. In preventing and relieving dumb suffering they have ennobled the race. But for those who hold that the objects of humanity include man, the work of preventing cruelty has only begun. It is difficult enough in itself, but not the least of the obstacles lies in the opposition of our modern Cannings and Peels who prefer old law and tradition to simple human justice.

Titled 'Prince Of Beggars' Organises Great London Hospital Drive

In Lord Knutsford, the man now organising the great drive on behalf of London hospitals, England possesses the title of "the Prince of Beggars."

He started in 1891, when he first began to reorganise the great London Hospital at Whitechapel. He met two Americans on top of a street car and invited them to lock the hospital ever. When the tour was over Knutsford—or Sidney Holland, as he then was—looked very hard at a money box. The visitors looked very hard at him, and each put in a sovereign. And one of them said: "Sure, you have got in you the instincts of a—— swindler," and his companion added: "You would do well out West if you weren't shot the first week."

By all sorts of appeals, public and private, he raked in enough money to put the great hospital on its feet for the time being. Once he received one hundred pounds from a generous donor, who unluckily for himself referred to it as "1,000 half crowns," which would, in fact, amount to £125. Knutsford's reply was swift and sure: "Whose arithmetic is wrong, yours or mine? I am not a business man and so have no credit to lose, but you are and have." And the generous one redeemed his credit by return of post.

One sportsman wrote: "I am sending you my last night's bridge winnings. They ought to be more, but my partner revoked."

The message flashed back over the wires:

"Thanks. Please send partner's name and address."

Kennedy Jones, Lord Northcliffe's partner, once advertised for some one to give employment to "a good, honest man, who badly needed a job for the next fortnight." Knutsford at once came to the rescue and employed the good, honest fellow to call every day on Kennedy Jones and ask him to subscribe to the London Hospital. In three days Kennedy Jones capitulated—heavily.

Rare Historic Records May Reveal Unknown Life Of Early Aztecs

Will thousands of hitherto undecipherable documents recently added to the collection of the Bancroft Library, University of California, reveal past civilisations in Mexico and Southwestern United States hitherto unknown to historians?

The question, says an Exchange, has been raised coincident with the return of Professor Bolton, director of the library, from a three-week tour of the regions inhabited by the Cliff Dwellers for the purpose of securing additional data before commencing the task of deciphering the manuscripts.

Thousands of age yellowed bits of paper, gathered from Mexico and various parts of southern North America comprise only a portion of the collection of the library which, when deciphered, are expected to shed much light on broken periods of Spanish, American, Aztec and Cliff Dweller history.

A shadow of romance clings about the form of Professor Bolton, who during a great part of his vacations during the past fifteen years has visited Old Mexico, Arizona, New Mexico and Spain, securing and studying the writings of the ancient conquistadores and of aboriginal historians.

In the collection, valued at more than $2,000,000, are birth records of the children of the Spanish explorers.

By pack mule, trekking through the stretches of the Mojave desert, on horseback through portions of Mexico and often obliged to swing himself by ropes to the former habitations of the Cliff Dwellers, Professor Bolton has incessantly searched for data throwing light on his life study, "The History of the Spanish Borderlands," on which subject he has published nearly thirty books.

Women As Office-Seekers

AMONG the objections to giving the franchise and the right to hold public office in the United States urged during the campaign for woman suffrage were assertions that women would clamor loudly and in great numbers for public places, and that women were unpractical and more governed by illogical impulse than men, so that they were more prone to try to rush into offices for which they were not fitted by temperament or training. These declarations, chiefly made by male politicians opposed to woman suffrage, may be tested by actual experience even thus early in the trial of the suffrage experiment. Illuminating facts bearing on the problem are set forth in statements by Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, vice-chairman of the Republican national executive committee, based on reports she has received from Republican primary elections throughout the United States.

These reports show that the women are quite practical, quite aware of their own limitations and not greatly inclined to seek high office or to rush in where they should not. The women are running for county and municipal places rather than state or national ones. Only three Republican women have been nominated for Congress and three qualified for nomination. The whole number of Republican women nominated for state legislatures will not be more than forty, while the nominees for county offices will be around 200.

As an indication of the innate practicality of women and their governing common sense, qualities in which through all time and in all places they have shown themselves quite the equals of men, Mrs. Upton's reports show that the majority of Republican candidates for county offices are running for places for which women have had more training in the past, for auditor, recorder and similar positions of a clerical rather than an administrative or "political" nature. It is safe to infer from these facts, that not until large numbers of women have had more experience in public affairs and in politics will many of them seek the so-called "higher" offices. Caution, that inborn and well-nigh universal trait of woman, stands back of their common sense in this respect.

It seems plain from the foregoing facts furnished by Mrs. Upton that women are not going to rush pellmell for office until they have "learned the ropes" and feel themselves qualified for the positions—something that unfortunately cannot be said, of all or even of nearly all men office-seekers.

VACUUM OIL DIVIDEND

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS

Dear Sir:—In reference to recent announcement that a 300 percent dividend had been declared by the Vacuum Oil Company, New York, the action taken by the Directors was evidently misunderstood, as they recommended a portion of surplus accumulated funds, during many years, be transferred to Capital Account, which is merely a bookkeeping transaction, and which does not increase the equity of any shareholder because the present value of shares will be reduced in proportion to the new stock issued.

As the previous announcement is rather misleading, would you kindly give publicity to this letter and oblige.

Yours very truly,

Does The Earth Help The Sun To Shine?

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS
Eminent Astronomer and Authority On Subjects Of Scientific Interest

Below is an unusual and a thoughtful question:

"Does the earth affect the sun in regard to light and heat? For the earth to benefit from the rays of the sun is it necessary that the earth in turn give back energy to the sun?—Herman Koehl, New York."

Nothing is had for nothing anywhere in the universe. There is reaction between the earth and the sun. Each pulls upon the other with a force proportional to its mass. The sun pulls upon the earth with a force 330,000 times that with which the earth pulls upon the sun. Each compels the other to move around a common center of gravity, for although that center lies less than 300 miles from the center of the sun, yet, all the same, the sun has to swing its gigantic form around that point within its mass because it is, so to speak, balanced against the little earth.

Thus the earth transfers a certain amount of kinetic energy, or energy of motion, to the sun. The accelerating force operating between them is measured by the sum of their masses.

By virtue of gravitational force the earth raises tides in the sun. They are relatively tiny tides, and they are formed not in a cold liquid like the ocean waters, but in a tremendous atmosphere, or shell, of incandescent gases; yet they involve the transfer of energy from the earth to the sun.

In like manner all of the planets react gravitationally upon the sun, whose attraction holds them in their orbits. Energy is so protean that its apparitions are not always predictable.

The energy imparted from the revolving planets may be transformed in the sun in such a way as slightly to increase its output of radiation, which usually we speak of as light and heat though they represent but a part of it. Just what effect the removal of the planets would have in diminishing the sun's radiant energy it is, perhaps, impossible to say, but it could be but a very small fraction of the total output, by far the greater part of which is due to action taking place in the body of the sun; either the gravitational motion of shrinking volume, as Helmholtz calculated, or the effect of the release of energy from radioactive solar matter, as begins now to seem probable.

Although there is, as we have seen, a certain interchange of energy between the earth and the sun, yet it cannot be said that this accounts for the maintenance of the supply of light and heat that the sun furnishes to our planet. The earth can repay but a small fraction of its debt in that way. The sun is, apparently, permanently out of pocket in behalf of all its planets.

If they were able to repay it in full it would be unnecessary to look for any other unfailing source of solar energy than the gravitational reaction of the planets. But the earth receives less than one two-thousand-millionth of the total radiation sent out by the sun, and all the planets together not more than one one-hundred-millionth—on the accepted hypothesis that the radiation occurs equally in all directions whether it is intercepted or not.

On this point Professor Young has some significant words. Referring to the assumption that the sun radiates heat "in all directions alike whether the rays do or do not meet a material surface," he says: "No reason can be assigned why this assumption should not be true, but it cannot be said to be proved as yet, either by experiment or by the nature of the case. If it should ever be shown to be incorrect, certain difficulties in the theory of planetary evolution would be greatly mitigated."

Many persons seem to have a strong predelection for the view that solar radiation, especially as manifested in light and heat, takes place only between the sun and material bodies like the earth, having no existence in parts of space that do not lie between the sun and some material substance. They appear to think that the electromagnetic character of the light-waves confirms the idea. But this is not evident. The field of force around a magnet, for instance, certainly gives every indication of spreading in all directions without regard to the existence of substances affected by the magnet's attraction.

However, as far as I know, the question remains, as in Professor Young's time, undetermined by positive proof. The fact that light rays in space cannot be seen as such is so proof of their non-existence; it is only proof that, until they strike a material body, their energy is not in a form capable of affecting the sense of vision. The transformation into a visual form when a material body is encountered is easily explained.

If it should, nevertheless, ever be shown, as Professor Young said, that the prevailing hypothesis is erroneous, the result might seriously upset our present notions concerning reaction between the earth and the sun.

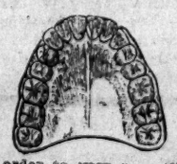
KINGMAN & BROS.
How to Preserve the Teeth



In order to keep the teeth in a good condition scientific precaution must be taken. Through negligence, decay and numerous other affections such as tooth-ache, dental periostitis, estoo-periostitis, necrosis of the jaw, etc., may arise. During the process of ingestion, there are settled on the teeth some deposits of mineral and organic matters, called tartar, which possesses a morbid power of pressing the gum. As an inevitable result of the presence of this tartar, the teeth will become elongated and movable and will, by degrees, absorb away the enamel, leading ultimately to the decay and degeneration of the teeth. The tartar is so hard and resistant to the process of brushing that it cannot be scraped off except with dental instruments specially devised for that purpose.

Dr. KINGMAN offers to the public his service for preserving their teeth at an annual subscription Fee of $10.00 per head to be paid in advance.

The work to be done by Dr KINGMAN to the subscribers consist in:—
(1) Cleaning of the teeth quarterly.
(2) Filling with gold platinum alloy only, when the teeth present holes.
(3) Inspecting the teeth at any time at the desire of the subscribers.

Son Slays Father Over Stenographer

Rob B. Garvey.

ROB B. Garvey shot and killed his father, J. W. Garvey, wealthy Kansas City lumber dealer, after the latter had discharged Mrs. Helen S. Groh, a young stenographer. Mrs. Groh, it is reported, has dropped out of sight, and efforts to locate her have been unavailing.

DR. LYMAN ABBOTT NOTED AMERICAN PUBLICIST, DEAD

Outlook Editor Passes Away At Ripe Age Of 86 Years

(China Press Service)

New York, Oct. 23.—Dr. Lyman Abbott, famous preacher, author and publicist, is dead. He was stricken with bronchitis last Summer and never recovered.

(Reuter's Service)

New York, Oct. 23.—The death is announced of the Rev. Lyman Abbott, editor of the Outlook, at the age of 86 years.

Dr. Abbott's writings and teachings for more than half a century have earned him a niche among the immortals inasmuch as he was one of the great moulders of public opinion during the present century.

He succeeded Henry Ward Beecher as pastor of the Plymouth Church, Brooklyn, where he remained continuously until 1899. He was literary editor of Harper's Magazine and of the Illustrated Christian Weekly, and associate editor with Henry Ward Beecher of the Christian Union. In 1893 he was appointed editor-in-chief of The Outlook where he remained until his death.

His writings comprise more than two score volumes the best known of which are probably "The Other Room," 1904; "Life and Letters of Paul, 1889; "The Great Companion", 1905; "Industrial Problems," 1905; "The Home Builder", 1908; "The Temple," 1909; "The Spirit of Democracy," 1910; "My Four Anchors" 1911; "America in the Making" 1911; "Letters to Unknown Friends"; "Reminiscences," 1915; "The Twentieth Century Crusade," 1918. His home was at Cornwall-on-Hudson, N. Y.

SPECIALLY BUILT PILOT STEAMER LAUNCHED HERE

Many Guests See Ceremony At New Engineering Yards

The launching ceremony was held yesterday in the presence of a large number of guests for the new single screw pilot steamer Shanghai, built to the order of the Shanghai Licensed Pilots' Association by the New Engineering and Shipbuilding Works.

The new pilot steamer is 189 feet long over all, has a length B. P. of 180 feet, moulded breadth of 34 feet and a depth moulded to main deck of 16 feet 6 inches.

The steamer has been designed and constructed to suit the special requirements of the pilots for work at the approaches to Shanghai, and to pass Lloyd's classification 100 A.1 and requirements. It is built of steel with straight stern and elliptical stern and the hull is divided longitudinally by 5 watertight bulkheads, forming fore peak, fore hold, bunker space, engine and boiler space, after hold and after peak. The hold spaces are further sub-divided into 13 watertight compartments constructed to form deep tanks, eight of which will be used for carrying fresh water and the remainder as ballast tanks for trimming the vessel to a constant draft as the coal and fresh water is used up on service.

The vessel has three decks, lower, upper and promenade decks, also navigating bridge and wheel house built over the promenade deck. A specious dining saloon is arranged at the forward end of the promenade deck and at the after end of the same deck a comfortable smoke room is fitted up. The upper and lower deck forward is set out entirely for the accommodation of the pilots, fourteen staterooms being situated on the upper deck and ten on the lower deck, making twenty-four state rooms in all, fitted up in the most modern manner. The after end on the same deck, rooms are fitted up for stewards, boys, native engineers and loadah, and wash places for the seamen and firemen. On the lower deck aft are the native crews quarters and mess rooms, forward of which is a large cold storage compartment extending the full width of the ship. The vessel is fitted with a "Napier" type steam windless for handling the anchors and cables and on the upper deck aft a powerful steam capstan is fitted. Steam steering gear supplied by the builders is fitted in a recess abaft the engine room on upper deck.

A complete set of Marconi wireless is installed for communicating with vessels approaching the pilot steamer and a large refrigerating plant by Messrs. J. E. Hall of Dartford is fitted in the machinery space. The propelling machinery consists of one set of triple expansion surface condensing engines, steam being supplied by two cylindrical return tube boilers each fitted with three corrugated furnaces, all made at the builders works. The boilers are arranged to work under natural draught and are designed to Lloyds requirements for a working pressure of 180 lbs. per square inch. A very complete set of auxiliaries is installed, working in conjunction with the main propelling machinery, also auxiliary condensing plant for use when vessel is at her station.

Electric light is fitted throughout the vessel, current being generated by two duplicate sets of "Sissons" compound enclosed engines and dynamos each capable of giving an output of 14 K. W. A powerful searchlight is fitted arranged to operate from the wheelhouse.

Following the launching speeches were made by Mr. C. H. Arnhold, for the builders, and Capt. Mahon, manager of the Licensed Pilots' Association.

Mr. Arnhold spoke in interesting fashion of the early days of piloting in Shanghai, recalling the original sailing schooner used. Capt. Mahon praised the construction of the vessel in responding to the toast to the owners and proposed the health of the builders and thanked Mme. de Rossi, who christened the Shanghai.
